

Report Italy Gives Germany Free Hand on Czech Question

Mussolini May Bring Pressure Upon Praha Regime

PACT IS DISCUSSED

Hitler Willing to Join If Differences Can Be Ended

Rome—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, according to German sources, has agreed to give Germany a free hand in Czechoslovakia, so far as Italy is concerned.

Mussolini was said to have promised, during a conversation last night with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, to bring diplomatic pressure to bear on the Czechoslovak government to be "reasonable" in meeting German demands.

The German sources said Mussolini agreed Italy was a disinterested party in Czechoslovakia, and that the sudeten German problem was one which concerned only Germans and Czechoslovakia.

Mussolini was reported to have expressed hope Germany would be able to solve the problem "on her own strength." He also was quoted as having expressed conviction that a solution of the German problem in Czechoslovakia would contribute to stabilization of European peace.

Four-Power Pact

After the dictators had talked an hour, the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, and Italy's Count Galeazzo Ciano were called in and conversations continued another hour.

Mussolini's pet project—rejuvenation of a four-power pact—was reported the chief topic.

Hitler, according to German sources, indicated willingness to join in such a pact (involving France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany) but left no doubt he considered it essential that Italy-French and German-British understandings precede such an agreement.

Ironing out French and Italian differences—a project frustrated by Hitler's visit—would take at least a year, German spokesmen believe, and conversations between Britain and Germany might require even more time.

Questioned as to Poland's desire to join a pact of the major powers, the spokesmen counter-queried:

"Didn't you notice that Mussolini did not invite the Poles to be at the railway station when Hitler arrived?"

Hitler came to Rome last Tuesday and has sandwiched conversations with Mussolini in between demonstrations in his honor. Rain today gave guest and host much more time together than they had expected.

The downpour washed out a big air and artillery show and left to night's state dinner at Palazzo Venezia the high spot of the day's program.

The question of Trieste, former Austrian Adriatic port won by Italy in World War settlement, was said to be one of the topics reserved for detailed discussion today.

(With Austria now in the German fold, it was possible Hitler wished to recover Trieste as a foothold on the Mediterranean—or at least obtain Italian concession of port rights.)

Paraded Troops
Yesterday 11 Duce paraded 30,000 troops, equipped with every device of modern warfare, before Hitler in Rome. These were a part of the 9,000,000 German soldiers says he can muster in time of war.

There were reports in German circles that back of Hitler's moves to line up Italian support was his desire to eliminate soviet Russia from political influence in Europe.

To do this, he wants first to disrupt the present ties which link Russia to France and Czechoslovakia. Mussolini was said to have promised he would bring all the diplomatic pressure possible upon the Czechoslovak government to grant the demands of Germany in Czechoslovakia that the republic's alliance with Russia be abandoned.

Germans believe Mussolini is in position to suggest to France that Great Britain, France and Italy can take care of the Mediterranean without France having to rely on Russia for aid.

WITNESS AT QUIZ

Week's Delay Is Being Sought in Duncan's Trial

Absence of Important Witnesses Is Given As Reason

Milwaukee—(AP)—District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes announced today he had been informed the defense would ask a week's delay when the Thomas M. Duncan first degree manslaughter case is called for trial before Circuit Judge G. N. Risjord next Monday.

Duncan, executive secretary to Governor LaFollette, is accused of driving the automobile which struck and killed Henry Schuette, retired West Allis business man, the night of March 9. Two police physicians said Duncan was under the influence of liquor when they examined him shortly after the accident.

Steffes made public the following letter sent to Judge Risjord by Benjamin Post, defense attorney:

"This is to confirm our telephone conversation of May 4, in which I explained that two of the defense's important witnesses, Harold Wilkie and Dean Middleton, are compelled to be out of the state the week of May 9, and it will be necessary to have a week's adjournment."

Wilkie is president of the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents. Dean William Middleton is head of the university medical school. The latter examined Duncan at the Madison General hospital, Madison, when Duncan went there for treatment after the Schuette accident.

Steffes said he also had been informed by the physician for Schuette's widow, Anna, she was in such condition she would be unable to appear Monday as a state witness. He added he would ask the court to permit the state to take her deposition in the event she is unable to appear later.

Steffes said he would oppose the defense plea for a delay, but if overruled would ask that the trial be set definitely for May 17.

Compromise Tax Bill Is Approved

Conferees Make No Change In Terms Reached Last Week

Washington—(AP)—A joint house-senate committee approved today the final draft of the compromise tax bill.

The conferees said they made no changes in the terms of the agreement reached last week, merely approving language of the compromise worked out by the committee.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee said he hoped to bring the revised legislation before the senate Monday or Tuesday.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the house ways and means committee told reporters he expected to obtain house action on the day following the senate vote.

The compromise bill is designed to raise $5,330,000,000 in revenue. As finally approved by the joint committee, the bill would retain a modified form of the controversial undistributed profits tax. Corporations earning more than $25,000 a year would pay the tax ranging from 16 1/2 to 19 per cent depending on the amount of profits distributed to stockholders.

The undistributed profits levy would remain in effect for only two years.

Capital gains held longer than two years would be taxed at the rate of 15 per cent.

"What have you been eating?"

This is now a professional question as well as a home economics problem, for nine times out of ten it is the first step in the doctor's investigation of an ailing patient. Just as the doctor looks into the type of food that the patient has been eating, so does Miss Mary Ann Kidd, lecturer and demonstrator for the seventeenth annual Post-Crescent cooking school, make use of her years of research in the study of body-building foods, food combinations, balanced meals and menu-planning in her daily sessions which will be held next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings at the Rio theater.

The important part which food plays in our lives is receiving more and more attention these days, and only recently a new book made its appearance on the book stalls, having for its theme the idea that "you are what you eat." The author pointed out that the inhabitants of various countries and parts of the world owe their national characteristics such as easy-going lassitude or vigor and energy to the types of foods which they eat. If this be true, surely intelligent people should pay more attention to their diets and those of their families.

In accumulating her storehouse of scientific knowledge, Miss Kidd has overlooked the art of entertaining and the art of being entertained.

She is justified in speaking of hospitality with authority, for as she journeys from city to city, addressing standing-room-only throngs of homemakers, she has a way of creating an informal, neighborly atmosphere in the most crowded hall.

Presiding over her well-equipped kitchen, she radiates a cordial friendliness that transforms the hall gathering into a woman-to-woman visit, a cheery, instructive open forum.

The woman who is out to get the most out of the cooking school next week will come to the sessions armed with pad and pencil, as well as with her knottiest homemaking problems, for Miss Kidd will be prepared to answer questions from

Reach Accord at West Allis Plant

CIO Union Ratifies Compromise Settlement By Voice Vote

Milwaukee—(AP)—Peace was restored to the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company plant here today when the plant local of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) ratified by voice vote the settlement of differences between the union and company.

The compromise was reached Wednesday night in mediation before the state labor relations board. Ratification today was by a large majority. An estimated 4,000 union members attending a mass meeting, but not all remained to vote.

Speakers appearing after the vote warned members against "wildcat" or unauthorized strikes during the coming year.

Terms of the settlement, announced by President Harold Christoffel of the U. A. W. Open shop policy maintained, the company reiterating that nothing would be done to undermine the union; no blanket contract covering workers in plants at West Allis, Boston and Pittsburgh, except that agreements for each plant will run for similar periods; seniority rights recognized on a departmental basis, qualified on a basis of occupational ability; restricted stewardship, the number of stewards left to mutual agreement; vacations of 10 instead of 6 days for employees of 10 years' service or more; no compulsory arbitration; recognition of the U. A. W. as the bargaining agent for production workers; and wage schedules the same except for minor adjustments.

Christoffel said the company had agreed to pay workers for time lost in Wednesday's work interruptions. The company announced it would have a statement to make tonight.

Goga, Former Premier Of Rumania, Succumbs

Bucharest, Rumania—(AP)—Octavian Goga, 57, who headed a nationalist, anti-Semitic Rumanian government for a few turbulent weeks early this year, died today.

Goga suffered a heart ailment after his resignation as premier Feb. 10 and had a stroke this week.

King Carol commissioned Goga, thrice previously a cabinet minister, to form a new government Dec. 28, 1937. In the six weeks that it lasted, his administration imposed drastic restrictions on Jews and laid the basis for a broad anti-semitic and fascist program.

Two Congressmen Denied Right to Deliver Speeches at Jersey City

Jersey City, N. J.—(AP)—Two United States representatives were denied permission today to make public speeches in Jersey City tonight by Public Safety Director Daniel Casey, who described them as "personally obnoxious to the great majority of our citizens because of their communistic endeavors."

Representatives Jerry J. O'Connell (D-Mont.) and John T. Bernard (D-Minn.) nevertheless carried forward plans to address a mass meeting in Journal square where Socialist Leader Norman Thomas last week unsuccessfully made a similar attempt.

Casey said his denial was based "on the ground that said meeting would tend to create disorder and disturbance."

Two groups of organizations with opposite objectives planned to observe a seemingly inevitable clash of Jersey City police and the congressmen—war veterans who backed Mayor Frank Hague, vice chair-

Jap Garrison Faces Threat Of Extinction

Chinese Guerilla Troops Fighting Foes in Nantungchow

Lines Are Menaced

Nipponese Reinforcements Are Rushed From Shanghai

Shanghai—(AP)—About 3,000 Chinese guerilla troops, fighting recklessly in streets of Nantungchow, threatened today to annihilate the Japanese garrison of that supply base on the north bank of the Yangtze river, 60 miles north of Shanghai.

Japanese reinforcements rushed from Shanghai in a desperate effort to save the decimated garrison and retain possession of the important base town.

Loss of Nantungchow would cut supply and communication lines serving a Japanese army of 10,000 operating in north Kiangsu province. This army was last reported 60 miles south of the Lungshai railway, fighting in the vicinity of Fowning, Scores Killed.

Foreigners arriving from Yangtze ports said scores of Chinese civilians already had been killed and hundreds were hiding in terror while hand-to-hand fighting raged inside the walls of Nantungchow.

The Chinese guerillas infiltrated Nantungchow three days ago and attacked by surprise, inflicting many casualties on the Japanese garrison, which numbered 300 men at the outset. Remnants of the garrison were last reported fighting for their lives.

The only foreigner at Nantungchow was Miss V. Mushrush, American nurse attached to the United Christian Missionary Society hospital.

While the Chinese and Japanese battered each other ineffectively in south Shantung, Chinese reported victories in Shansi province. They said they recaptured four cities and Tungkankwan—the Rising Sun pass gateway through the Tahan mountains from Honan into Shansi province.

The Chinese said capture of the pass prevented Japanese forces in Shansi province from coordinating their activities with troops along the Peiping-Hankow railway to the east.

Japs Outnumbered
The Japanese army today blamed the "slow" progress of its central China offensive on the numerical superiority of the Chinese and the fact the Chinese are defending strong natural positions.

This explanation was given by the Japanese spokesman here in response to queries why the offensive had been stalled for nearly four months, despite pouring of thousands of reinforcements into the south Shantung war zone.

The spokesman said Chinese have a numerical superiority of 20 to 1. On this ratio, Japanese would have only about 50,000 troops in Shantung, but foreign observers declare they have at least twice that many.

It was pointed out that Chinese occupy fortified hill positions and have been utilizing natural defenses, such as the Yellow river, to check the offensive.

Ask Cooperative Milk Producers to Meeting

Madison—(AP)—State farm groups today issued a call for a meeting of cooperative milk producers at Salem, Kenosha county, May 17, to discuss the possibility of regulating the Chicago milk market.

About 15 organizations, meeting here yesterday with the state department of agriculture and markets, protested that recent reductions in wholesale prices being paid for milk in Chicago have placed Wisconsin producers in a desperate situation.

Representatives of the cooperatives said they believed something is wrong with the present marketing setup and that if the producers unite they may be able to agree upon a plan for regulation.

Farmers had complained to the state department that wage increases granted processing workers in the Chicago milk plants had been taken out of their milk checks.

Quick House Action Asked On Wage Bill

Proponents Want Consideration Without Further Delay

UP TO RULES BODY

Even Supporters Doubtful That Committee Will Yield

Washington—(AP)—House proponents of wage-hour legislation, jubilant over success of their petition to take the bill from the rules committee, demanded today that the house be allowed to consider the measure without further delay.

demonstration when 218 members, a majority of the house, signed the petition in little more than two hours after it was filed yesterday, should be accepted as a mandate for the rules committee to give the bill preferential status.

Under house rules, May 23 is the earliest date the bill could be considered under the petition.

There was considerable doubt, however, even among the bill's supporters, that the rules committee would yield.

May Stand Firm
"I don't think it will work," Representative Mead (D-N. Y.), a member of the unofficial steering committee for the bill, said of the agitation for reversal of the rules committee's stand.

After the committee voted 8 to 6 last week to pigeon-hole the bill, its supporters resorted to the petition method of bringing it to the floor.

Some legislators said the eight committee members who refused to give the bill right-of-way to the floor would not be inclined to change their votes now for fear of being regarded as having weakened under pressure.

Behind sentiment for hastening consideration of the bill was the possibility of prolonged senate debate against the measure.

Anxious to Adjourn
Most house members are anxious to get home and at work on political fence-mending for the election campaign. They fear southern senators will use every possible parliamentary stratagem to delay the wage-hour measure if it is approved by the house and, consequently, delay adjournment.

In its present form, the bill would establish immediately a minimum wage of 23 cents an hour. This minimum would be increased five cents annually until it reached 40 cents at the end of three years. Maximum hours would start at 44 per week and drop to 40 in two years.

Labor Board to Ask Court to Quash Writ

Philadelphia—(AP)—The national labor relations board announced today it would ask the United States Circuit Court of Appeals Monday to dismiss a temporary injunction restraining the board from proceeding in its case against the Republic Steel corporation.

Charles Fahy, general counsel for the board, said if the circuit court refused, the board would go immediately to the supreme court and ask an order that the court here grant the request.

Under the circuit court order, the board was restrained until next Friday from taking any "steps or proceedings whatever" against the steel corporation, pending a hearing on a motion by the company that the board be ordered to certify to the court for review the records on which the board ordered reinstatement of 5,000 Republic employees who struck in five Ohio plants.

Year's Relief Cost Set at 3 Billion in Hopkins' Estimate

Hope X-Ray Treatments May Save Life and Sight Of Afflicted Chicago Baby

Chicago—(AP)—X-ray treatments were arranged for Baby Helaine Colan today in the hope of saving both her sight and her life, menaced by glaucoma, a rare tumorous disease.

Dr. Herbert E. Schmitz, head of the Mercy Hospital Institute for Radiation Therapy, said the 5-week-old girl's grandfather, Dr. Morris Herschman, had made the preparation for the treatments, the first to be given Monday. Dr. Schmitz said they would be administered indefinitely.

Two similar cases, the institute chief said, had been treated at the hospital in the last 18 months, but success of the treatments would not be determined for five years. The patients in both cases were men.

Previously, the baby's heartbroken parents, Dr. and Mrs. Herman Colan, wavered between an operation which would save the girl's life but would blind her, and the alternative of allowing nature to take its course. The latter choice would mean death, medical men said.

Dr. Morris Herschman, the child's maternal grandfather, said last yesterday the young parents had reached the fateful decision to "let nature take its course."

But today the father said no final decision had been made.

Baby Colan is afflicted with glaucoma in both eyes. Physicians said the cancerous growth would spread to her brain and cause death if an operation were not performed in which both eye balls would be removed.

Conflicting Advice
The parents turned to friends, relatives, brain surgeons and a spiritual adviser for help, and received conflicting advice.

Physicians generally were agreed no operation could save the child's sight and that death would ensue, probably within two months, if no operation were performed.

Until two weeks ago the baby was believed normal in every respect. Then Dr. Herschman noticed a flaw in the left eye. Specialists subsequently confirmed his diagnosis—glaucoma of the retina in both eyes.

The disease attacks the nerves of the eye, spreading from the retina to the brain. Physicians declare they know of no certain cure.

The baby's grandfather, a physician and surgeon, was torn between professional and paternal feelings.

"As a physician, I believe nature should be allowed to take its course," said Dr. Herschman. "As a father, and as this child's grandfather, however, I am inclined to the other side—that of trying to save the baby by giving it the only chance that science knows—an operation."

The Colans have another daughter, Sharlene, 3.

Born Oct. 10, 1882, at Parnassus, Penn., she moved to Pittsburgh, Pa., at an early age. She was married to W. F. Ashe, Dec. 29, 1908, at Pittsburgh, and lived there until 1919 when Mr. Ashe was appointed head of the personnel department of the Philmar Tulp and Paper company at Kaukauna. She was a member of Brookview Memorial Methodist Episcopal church and past president of the Women's Foreign Missionary society and the Social Union of the church. She also was a past president of the Kaukauna Women's club.

Terrorist Leader Slain In Holy Land Battle

Jerusalem—(AP)—Issa Battat, identified by police as a terrorist leader responsible for the slaying of J. L. Starkey, a British archaeologist, was killed last night in the Hebron area in a pitched battle with police. Starkey was killed Jan. 10 near Hebron in a holdup.

BABY FACES DEATH

Helaine Judith Colan, five week old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herman Colan of Chicago, is shown in a hospital while her parents and doctors tried to reach a decision upon which the life of the baby balances. The child is afflicted with an eye tumor which medical men predict will cause her death in two months unless an operation is performed which leaves the baby sightless.

Figures For Full Year
Asked what the program would cost if projected for the full fiscal year—from July 1, 1938, to July 1, 1939—Hopkins replied:

"In round figures it would be $3,000,000,000 for additional work expenditures for the full year, which is $2,000,000,000 dollars over the budget estimate, if you are projecting it for a full year."

The administrator explained that the WPA program would cost $2,500,000,000 for the full fiscal year, and that in addition other federal agencies engaged in relief and semi-relief activities would need $750,000,000. Hopkins' aids said the administrator was including in this figure proposed public works administration grants, and allotments for the farm security administration and the national youth administration.

No Cut In Rolls
Predicting the relief load would not drop below 2,600,000 during the summer, Hopkins said he did not believe the situation would warrant "anybody believing that WPA rolls can be cut."

"I know," he said, "that the number of families in the United States getting relief benefits of any kind is over 6,000,000, including about 20,000,000 people. I know at one time there were 27,000,000 people who were getting aid."

Hopkins said expenditure of federal funds alone would not "provide the total increase in private employment which is essential in our economy."

"For my own part, I do not believe that the expenditure of large sums of public money in and by itself, will do the trick," he said.

"However, we are in a situation where private funds simply are not moving, where employment is at a lower level, where people are put on part time, where the national income has dropped in a relatively few months from a rate of $68,000,000,000 to $56,000,000,000."

Take Unlucky View
Hopkins viewed pessimistically the possibility private industry would be able eventually to absorb all the nation's employable persons.

Hopkins told the committee the relief problem could be attacked most efficiently by federal, rather than local, administration of funds.

Members of the appropriations subcommittee, announcing a decision to increase by $300,000,000 the sum President Roosevelt recommended for public works grants in his pending spending program, said today this might allow construction of many federal projects.

The subcommittee voted to permit federal grants up to $750,000,000 and loans up to $250,000,000 for locally-sponsored projects. Mr. Roosevelt had recommended $450,000,000 for grants and $350,000,000 for loans.

Secretary Ickes told the subcommittee, members said, that many communities would be able to obtain open market loans and would

Labor Board Told To File Records in Inland Steel Case

Chicago—(AP)—The national labor relations board has been ordered to file with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals a record of the board's proceedings in the Inland Steel company hearing.

The court's order directed that the record be filed not later than May 20. The steel company asked the court Wednesday to set aside the April 5 ruling by the labor board ordering Inland to recognize the committee for industrial organization, a so-called bargaining agent for its employees and to sign work contracts with the CIO.

The Inland company, in its petition, charged the labor board ruling was beyond the board's authority, and unconstitutional.

Sees Peak of 3,100,000 On WPA Roll Next Winter

OUTLINES VIEWS

Testifies at Hearing on Roosevelt Funds Request

Washington—(AP)—Congress learned from Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, today the government's relief program may cost $3,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year instead of $1,000,000,000, as originally estimated by the budget bureau.

Testifying before a house appropriations subcommittee on President Roosevelt's request for $1,250,000,000 to finance work relief from July 1 to Feb. 1, 1939, Hopkins disclosed he was preparing for a peak load of 3,100,000 relief clients next winter.

Hopkins said the $1,250,000,000 would take care of an average of about 2,600,000 persons until next October and permit an increase up to 3,100,000 during the winter months.

There are approximately 2,600,000 persons on relief rolls now and Hopkins with his estimated winter increase, there would be an average of 2,800,000 for the seven months period.

Figures For Full Year
Asked what the program would cost if projected for the full fiscal year—from July 1, 1938, to July 1, 1939—Hopkins replied:

No Attack Upon Press Freedom, Senator States

Rhode Islander Characterizes Charges as 'Arrant Nonsense'

Washington—(AP)—Senator Green (D-R. I.) said today that charges the senate lobby committee had attacked freedom of the press were "arrant nonsense."

He replied to a statement in which Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican party policy committee, said the lobby committee's investigation of the magazine "Rural Progress" was part of a campaign of "terror and intimidation" against publications which have criticized administration measures.

Also noting Frank's statement, Chairman Minton (D-Ind.) said the possibility the committee might call Frank as a witness was "not foreclosed."

"Whether we call him depends on developments in our investigation of the Rural Progress," Minton said. "His charge that the committee is attempting to intimidate the press is the usual squawk of people who are in a tight place—trying to get away from their rights."

The magazine, distributed free to farmers in seven states around Chicago, lately has been edited by Dr. Frank. Green said it had been published simply to spread "propaganda against the New Deal."

Operated At Loss

"The committee's investigation has shown," Green said, "that this publication, which pretends to be the organ of the farmers and which claims to be supported by its advertisers, received a million dollars in subscriptions from capitalists."

The committee developed yesterday in questioning its publisher, Maurice Reynolds, that advertising revenues paid about half the production cost and that the publication had been operated at a loss of approximately $900,000 in its three and a half years.

"The committee thought that the readers of this publication ought to know the facts about it," Green said, "and that should go for any newspaper. We are not attempting to attack or intimidate the press. This is merely a purification of the press which the press ought to welcome."

"Propaganda Organ"

The Rhode Island senator said he thought "Rural Progress" was a "particularly bad example" of what he termed a "propaganda organ."

The committee is investigating the publication as a part of its effort to ascertain ramifications of an administration lobbying.

Green declined comment on the possibility the lobby committee might take cognizance later of Frank's demand that he be allowed to testify. The Republican leader attempted to aid Reynolds in answering questions put to him by committee members but was squelched by Senator Green and Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash.).

Schwellenbach told Frank the committee was "not conducting a forum in which you can air your Republican views."

Dr. Frank later told reporters he would have explained to the committee that few magazines make money from the start, that some of national circulation had not made any profit in their first five years.

The committee introduced into the record a list of persons whom committee members described as "capitalists" who had invested in the magazine.

Dr. Frank asked as a "citizen and taxpayer" for the right to make a statement.

"I understand that you don't want any statement of the facts in this investigation," he told the committee when it recessed without calling him to the stand.

"We have had a full and complete statement of the facts in this investigation," Schwellenbach shouted back.

Dr. Frank, former University of Wisconsin president, was not subpoenaed by the committee.

The committee listed three officials of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Milwaukee, as having invested in the Rural Progress company.

Largest Investor

These included Otto H. Falk, chairman of the board, who holds $10,000 in debentures; Charles E. Albright, a director of the corporation, $25,000; and Alfred J. Kleckner, another director, $5,000.

The largest investor was listed as the Chicago Rotoprint company, with $107,000 in debentures. Katherine Reynolds, the publisher's wife, was second with $90,500.

Others listed by the committee as having invested in the magazine and the amount of debentures included:

Frank R. Bacon, Milwaukee, manufacturer and trustee of the Northwest Mutual Life Insurance company, $10,000; Walter Harnischfeger, Milwaukee, $3,000; George W. Mead, president of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., $10,000; Carnation company, $10,000; George A. Ball, Cleveland industrialist, $6,250; Herman Falk, Milwaukee, $10,000; estate of F. A. Vanderlip, $10,000; F. A. Vanderlip, Jr., $3,750; and Dr. Edward A. Runcy, secretary of the national committee to uphold constitutional government, $12,500.

President Eager For Enactment of Wages, Hours Law

Will Provide Argument in Coming Campaign, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Unless the American people by petition tell the members of congress otherwise between now and May 23, the federal government will assume authority to regulate wages and hours throughout the United States.

It is true the proposed law concerns only the minimum wages and only the maximum hours of business engaged in interstate commerce, but, if the congress today has the constitutional authority to fix minimum wages, it can fix all wage rates and all wage standards and thus make labor unions and collective bargaining wholly unnecessary, as is the case in fascist Germany.

Likewise, if congress has the authority to fix maximum hours, it can fix the rate of overtime. Tentatively, the rate of time and a half has been written into the proposed law, but another congress can diminish the rate or increase the rate for overtime pay as it sees fit.

The whole power to regulate wages and hours, which hitherto has been considered to lie outside the province of the federal government, would be assumed by congress and retained indefinitely thereafter unless the supreme court of the United States should say otherwise.

Considered Invalid

For many years, it was considered invalid for the states to pass minimum wage laws even where it was intended to safeguard the health of women and children. Recently, this was changed, but there has never been any approval by the supreme court of a minimum wage law of the states applying to men and women alike nor has there been any approval of a federal law governing minimum wages.

It is supposed, however, that the New Deal will contend that a federal minimum wage and hour law is merely a part of the congressional power to regulate interstate commerce so broadly that strikes in industries producing goods moving across state lines were declared to have an effect on interstate commerce. Is the desire to increase purchasing power or rather failure to increase it by paying higher wages an "effect on interstate commerce" within the meaning of the term used in the decisions on the Wagner Labor Relations act? If it is, then the federal power to regulate wages and hours will be defended on the ground that it is a proper regulation of interstate commerce itself.

Will Stop Marketing

The doctrine that congress may actually prohibit the passage of goods in interstate commerce as a means of achieving regulation has been upheld, so, strictly speaking, the legal theory back of the proposed reform is that any producer who doesn't pay the minimum wage or observe the maximum hour scale will not be allowed to move his goods to market.

Apart from the constitutional question involved, the economic effects of the proposed legislation have scarcely been debated. The senate passed a bill last year which is far different from the house bill that may be passed on May 23. The latter represents many concessions to the administration just to get the bill into conference.

The reason for this strategy is that, if congress adjourned next month without passing a wage and hour bill, it would be necessary to go through the senate again, and the chances of a filibuster there by southern senators would make doubtful passage of any measure. There is still a chance of a filibuster in the senate on a conference report. The senate passed the present bill with many of its members believing it would never get through the house.

Eager For Enactment

The president is eager to get some bill enacted even if it sets standards for minimum wages and maximum hours that are not much different from those which prevail in most industries and businesses today, his idea being to write the principle into law and give an argument for the coming congressional campaign. Mr. Roosevelt was checkedmate till the A. F. of L. and the CIO both gave their blessing to the proposal. It is significant that, until the opposition of the A. F. of L. was worn down, the measure was blocked, hence proving what was said in these dispatches yesterday, that the labor groups have a majority of both houses and can put through or block any bills affecting their welfare.

The national labor organizations feel, of course, that they can hold the proposed legislation within limits now and in the future, but they

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Senator Nye Grows Older

On the subject of American neutrality Senator Nye has long had strong, not to say passionate, convictions. But he would, I am sure, be the first to admit that he has changed his mind. Thus as chairman of a Senate Committee he did his best to popularize the theory that the way to stay out of wars is to refuse to trade with the belligerents. In all the debates on the various neutrality acts he has stood for statutory embargoes. A year ago in January he joined in a unanimous vote of the Senate imposing an embargo on the export of arms to Spain. A year ago in March he introduced a resolution which would have put an embargo on the export of arms to all nations and at all times, except only to an American nation at war with a European or Asiatic power. But now he has a resolution in Congress which confesses that as regards the Spanish embargo "the purpose has not been served" and he wishes to raise the embargo and let the Madrid government buy American arms.

Senator Nye's inconsistencies are shared by almost every one in this country. They arise out of the fact that on this immensely difficult subject virtually all Americans have contradictory opinions.

Exporting Arms to Warring Nation Is Grave Risk

With Senator Nye they believe that to export arms to a warring nation is to run the very grave risk of becoming embroiled with its enemies. Under the influence of this idea Americans approved of the Spanish embargo. They approved it so thoroughly that in January, 1937, after about one day's debate, the embargo was imposed in the Senate by a vote of 81 to 0 and in the House by a vote of 411 to 1.

But with Senator Nye Americans also believe that a nation fighting an aggressor should be allowed to obtain arms with which to defend itself. And so when Japan invaded China less than three months after the latest neutrality act had been passed, the country upheld the President when he did not impose an embargo. The President was able to avoid an embargo because both the United States and Japan found it convenient not to describe their savage warfare as a legal war. And there has been no real protest in Congress against the nullification of the intent of the neutrality act.

So we placed an embargo against Spain because we thought our peace was served by not exporting arms, and we do not have an embargo in the Far East because we think our interests are served by the Chinese resistance. And now we have an agitation in this country to raise the embargo against the Spanish loyalists because many think the cause of freedom and of peace is bound up with the resistance of Valencia and Barcelona to General Franco and his Fascist allies.

Experiment Jeopardizes Principle of Neutrality

It is clear that the net result of the experiment in neutrality by act of Congress has been to jeopardize the whole principle of American are not aware, it seems to me, of the dangerous implications of bestowing such power on the federal government for all times. For, unless the supreme court upsets the proposed law, it will have amended the constitution as surely as if a direct proposal to that effect had been adopted. Mr. Roosevelt said in 1937, when the bill to pack the supreme court was up for passage, that he wanted to obtain favorable decisions of the supreme court through justices accepting his interpretation of the constitution so it would be unnecessary to go through the customary process of amending the constitution. By the time the proposed minimum wage and hour law is passed by the supreme court, Mr. Roosevelt may have had a chance to appoint more of his own justices.

Opinions Differ

Opinions differ as to the economic results of the minimum wage and maximum hour bill if it should become law. If the final draft of the measure doesn't alter very much actually existing standards in industry and business, it will not increase purchasing powers. If it doesn't alter them radically, the law will result in a huge displacement of workers now known as "marginal."

There are lots of men and women of advancing years who will lose their jobs to younger persons if the higher rates of pay are put in as a compulsory minimum. For the employers will in some way have to make up the loss and they will naturally seek to increase production. They will do this by hiring more efficient, younger labor, men rather than women in certain types of work and women instead of men in other types, thus bringing about a shifting of employment in a year of depression and unemployment.

For the maximum hour provision has nothing to do with health. It is a means of increasing pay for all hours above a certain level. If it were a health measure, overtime would be forbidden altogether. It also remains to be seen whether relief rolls will not grow as more and more of the marginal workers are thrown out of work.

URGES PREPAREDNESS

Secretary of War Harry Hines Woodring warned that U. S. must be prepared for war because of "continued aggression" by dictators in an address at the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D. C. He is shown a moment before speaking.

Stage Hands Will Meet At Trades, Labor Hall

Stage hands are scheduled to meet tomorrow in the Appleton Trades and Labor hall.

Other meetings slated for next week are as follows: Monday night, labor hall, barbers and painters; Salvation Army building, molders; Tuesday night, labor hall, truck drivers and millmen; Salvation Army building, mechanics; Wednesday night, Appleton Trades and Labor council; Thursday night, labor hall, pulp workers; Salvation Army building, paper makers; Friday night, labor hall, common laborers; Salvation Army building, ironworkers; Saturday night, labor hall, district carpenters.

and-carry principle is truly neutral and noninterventionist; the embargo is in fact an intervention, and leads into rather than away from entanglements in foreign disputes. Thus the Spanish embargo is in fact intervention against Madrid; its repeal now would be intervention against Franco. The failure to impose a Chinese embargo is intervention on behalf of China.

The American government ought not to have to decide whether it wants its neutrality to help Madrid or Burgos, the British non-intervention committee or the Rome-Berlin axis, China or Japan. Embargoes force it to make these very decisions, and as long as we keep the embargo principle, we shall have to make these decisions. The cash-and-carry principle does away with the need for these decisions, and that, I think, is the kind of neutrality that most Americans would like to practice.

State Reorganization Program in Final Stages

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The state government reorganization program, which, except for purely political matters has been Governor LaFollette's chief concern during his third term in the executive office, will be wound up at a final meeting of his legislative advisory committee next week, it has been announced.

Begun early this year, the governor's renovation of the structure of capital departments was shunted aside during the last month by more important considerations, particularly his leadership of a new national third party movement.

With that safely underway, the chief executive next week will outline the final proposals in his campaign to modernize the administration of the state government, the first, he says, for 80 years.

Up to the present the governor has proposed, and his advisory committee has approved, 36 specific transfers, consolidations, and abolitions of state offices, personnel and functions. The changes have touched almost every important administrative office, and many hundreds of state employees.

Increased Efficiency

Since Governor LaFollette on many occasions lately has made a point of explaining the benefits of his program, the benefits to taxpayers in increased efficiency of machinery and man-power and budgetary economies, taxpayers may be interested in an outline of accomplishments thus far.

Most important, perhaps, was the consolidation of state inspection and enforcement services into a new department of inspection and enforcement, soon due to begin functioning. Hereafter, according to the governor, the inspector, to the governor, will be working in a smaller area, will perform the duties which previously required eight different inspectors, each of whom covered the same territory, and by their own admission often annoyed citizens whose business called for supervision by several state governmental agencies. The consolidation, by the governor's estimate, will save the state treasury $100,000 a year in travel and hotel expenses alone.

Another significant change, and one approved by those who are most directly interested, social workers, is the creation of a new state department of social adjustment in which will be grouped old age pensions, until now administered by the industrial commission, public assistance, also previously a job of the industrial commission, and the state public school, child welfare department, and the correction and deportation division, all from the state board of control.

These and many other minor offices and functions, 36 in all, have been affected in the governor's capitol "house-cleaning." Many state servants now have new bosses, many now have new jobs, while the capitol itself for weeks has been in the throes of physical reorganization, trading offices and furniture.

Byllesby Official Testifies He Knew Bookkeeping Methods Were Irregular

Madison—(AP)—William H. Pohl, secretary-treasurer of H. M. Byllesby and Company, utilities and investment firm, testified at a banking commission hearing yesterday he knew the company's bookkeeping methods in 1927-30 were irregular and that he was concerned about it.

The hearing to determine whether the company's 1938 license to sell securities in Wisconsin shall be revoked was adjourned to Monday following testimony of Pohl and H. C. Cummins, vice president in charge of engineering and operations for the Public Utility Engineering and Development company, Byllesby affiliate.

Questioned by William H. Spohn, special state counsel, Pohl said he spoke repeatedly to M. A. Morrison, former treasurer, "along the lines that I didn't have proper supporting data" for large withdrawals of cash. Morrison assured him, he added, that Walford E. Erickson and J. O'Brien, company officials who have since died, would give him the necessary information.

Produces Records

"I never got it," Pohl said. Spohn has produced records showing the company spent $1,000,000 during 1927-30 for unexplained purposes. The company has taken the position the conditions complained of no longer exist.

Cummins repeatedly declared he was "an operating man" and relied on recommendations of others in financial matters. He said he had "no occasion" to preserve secrecy regarding the disbursements now under investigation.

After Cummins testified he had not been a Byllesby director since 1926, Spohn showed him a copy of a federal power commission application which stated he had been reelected every year up to November, 1935.

"Were you an active director?" Spohn asked.

"No sir," Cummins replied.

New London Men Play Comedy Roles In 'Breezy Money'

3-Act Farce to be Staged Monday for Children, Tuesday for Adults

New London—Complications at a dizzy pace and two hours of side-splitting comedy will be offered by a group of prominent local men when they stage "Breezy Money," a farce in three acts, at the parish hall of the Most Precious Blood church next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The show will be a benefit performance for the Holy Name society and will be presented in advance Monday evening for children to leave sufficient seating capacity for adults the following night. The Rev. Paul E. Herb is directing the play.

A preview at rehearsals the last week indicated that Gregory Charlesworth, instructor and assistant athletic coach at Washington High school, probably will steal the show with his impersonation of Hoedown, the world's laziest colored bell hop. Breaking into hilarious limelight frequently will be Orr Glandt and Donald Farrell, portraying men characters in the play who dies as women when they become involved in difficulties.

George Ross takes the part of Cummin, owner of the Cummin Inn which is doing a losing business. He engages Breezy, a press agent played by A. A. Vorba, to frame up a publicity stunt to advertise his hotel. A reward of $1,000 is offered to the married couple who will stay in a supposedly haunted suite and overwhelm the ghosts.

Dresses as Woman
A. J. Brice is almost broke in the role of Dick Landis and his pal, Jimmy Gale, played by Orr Glandt, is dead broke. Jimmy dresses as a woman and poses as Dick's wife so they can win the $1,000. Plenty of excitement follows when complications set in. Charles Bessette is cast as Carter Maxon, Jr., a dashing young millionaire, and John Mullroy plays the part of Colonel Southern, the father of Patty Southern who is the fiancée of Maxon, Jr., but never appears on the stage.

Another entanglement centers around Helen, who also is as imaginary as far as the cast is concerned. She is the object of the affections of Landis and his rival, Herbert West, who is represented by J. J. Kircher. Donald Farrell appears in women's garb in his role as Mops, a clever native boy who is hired by Breezy to keep the hotel haunted by his tricks and see that no one wins the prize money. Messing up the whole business is William Stern, Sr., as Lonnue, sheriff and handy man.

Special stage properties have been built for the production. A complete lobby desk and letter rack has been installed and painted to represent the inn. The entire stage has been renovated with new scenery props and the interior redecorating of the hall has been completed to the last detail. Music will be provided by school musicians.

120 Persons Hear Chicago Man Speak On Townsend Plan

New London — About 120 persons heard i. Truman Gordon of Chicago as he described the workings of the Townsend Old Age Pension plan at an open meeting at the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall last evening. At the close many of the crowd enlisted with the New London Townsend club which sponsored the program.

Gordon, a former minister who left the pulpit to champion the Townsend plan, reported that members are now joining clubs throughout the nation at the rate of 12,000 a week. The two per cent tax on all retail transactions would be handled by stamps through the post office, he explained, and the $200 benefit checks would be distributed through the same channel. He pointed out the counterbalancing forces of the plan and claimed many benefits to be derived through prosperity for the older people. He urged a more thorough study of the plan by everyone, particularly skeptical business men.

Representatives were present from neighboring clubs, including Green Bay. A lunch was served afterwards, followed by dancing.

A Drowning Man

As a drowning man grasps at a straw, so does the average man afflicted with any form of disease seek relief in the most cleverly advertised medium. He believes misleading statements and unbusinesslike propositions offered in the promises of quick cures, buys experience at the expense of his nerve force and vitality and awakens to the realization of the fact that relief and cure are obtained only through the services of a reputable physician.

When contemplating treatment one should consider the factors of skill, experience and reliability which can best be obtained by consulting the physicians whose reputation among the people of the vicinity for skillful conscientious treatment, entitles him to the respect and confidence of all in need of medical treatment.

Dr. Charles A. Hoag of Chicago, who has visited our city once every month for years, is qualified in every way to fill these requirements by reason of the success which has attended his wide experience. The assertion that there is no doubt of his ability to restore to health those afflicted is based on the fact that he has so successfully treated and cured so many of our friends.

Dr. Hoag may be consulted free of charge and will again visit Appleton, Thursday, May 12, 1938. He will be at the Conway hotel. Office hours 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. Adv.

Park Board Adopts New Swimming Pool Schedule

New London—Marked changes in swimming schedules, a season ticket for adults, and improvement of facilities at the Hatten Park swimming pool were planned by the New London Park board at a meeting Thursday night according to William Lits, chairman of the new board. Opening of the pool is scheduled for the first part of June.

No swimming at all will be allowed in the morning this summer in order to keep the children active in playground work. The plan also will reduce operating expenses and assure fuller and more efficient use of the pool during the rest of the day, the board decided.

The pool will be open continuously each day, including Saturday and Sunday, from 2 o'clock in the afternoon to 10 o'clock in the evening. School children, including high school students, will be allowed free use of the pool from 2 to 5 o'clock each afternoon from Monday to Friday. However, the boys and girls will be restricted to free periods on certain days according to schedules to be arranged by R. M. Shortell, city recreation director. At all other times not provided on the schedule a charge of 10 cents will be made.

Adults and all out of town visitors will be allowed the use of the pool at any time during its operating period. A season ticket will be offered only to local adult residents for the price of $3. The ticket will be good any time and will not be transferable.

Among the improvements planned for the pool's opening is a new professional springboard, mounted on standards, and the erection of a 3-foot wire fence around the walk bordering the pool.

The board decided to retain Miss Evelyn Hickey to supervise girls' activities and facilities at the bath house while Harold Hayward, high school senior, and Douglas Hoier, junior, will be engaged to handle the boys' department.

Commerce Group To Have Banquet

Annual Event to be Held Monday Evening at Waupaca Hotel

Waupaca — The annual meeting and banquet of the American Association of Commerce will be Monday evening at the Delevan hotel.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 and the program will include a talk by Joe Mercedes, good will ambassador for Wisconsin's tourist areas. Mercedes is completing his log cabin trailer tour of the midwest, having covered 3,000 miles and will report to the association his views regarding the prospective summer tourist trade.

A nominating committee made up of R. D. Luther, O. F. Peterson and Horace Christoph named four candidates for two directorships of the association, the nominees being V. O. Parrish, R. G. Kirby, George Friberg and Ben Dance, from whom the membership will choose two directors to succeed Lester Laus and John Burnham.

Directors whose terms will hold over are C. H. Benlik, Ed. Farmer, Reid McLean, Wendall McHenry and John Peterson. Ray Pinkerton is secretary of the association.

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet sponsored by the Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church is to be held Monday evening at the church. The guest speaker will be Mrs. A. J. Hancock, Mrs. O. A. Smith will give the toast for mothers to the daughters, and the response will be from Miss June Dunkley.

Vocal solos by Miss Honor Walsh, Manawa, will be included in the musical program. The entertainment is in charge of Mrs. J. Shannon and Mrs. J. C. Jorgenson.

All-New London Team Organized For Wolf League

Legion Sponsored Nine to Open Season Against Weyauwega

New London — A team 100 per cent New London boys and probably the youngest in the Wolf River Valley circuit, was announced by the American Legion sponsors at a meeting with players at the clubhouse last night. The boys will start off in the season's opener against Weyauwega here at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

While the final lineup will be decided by the coaches A. Baer and E. M. Donner, the probable setup is fairly well indicated by the players' former experience and promises to be a snappy organization.

Composing the pitching staff are August Beckert, Melvin "Smoky" Lathrop, and Eddie Flanagan. The latter two also handle the outfield. Young Flanagan pitched winning games for the Legion juniors last year while his seniors are well known for former performances. Dividing the catchers job apparently will be William Cornell and Louis "Ike" Poeppke.

Two outstanding players with Dale in the Outagamie County league last year have brought their abilities to the New London club. Dan Washnick is a hard hitter and fine fielder while Dave Freuburger is cinched as a second baseman. Bernard Stern, high school senior, is deserting Shioctor, to bid for third base with the American Legion team. Ned Demming, Carroll college freshman, is rumored slated for the job of shortstop but someone else will have to fill in until he gets here.

Sam Huzzar probably will show at first base as the result of recent workouts. He worked in the field to help Shioctor win over Black Creek last Sunday. Others slated for the field are Herb Lathrop, Jim Flanagan and Vernon Dobberstein, the latter a high school senior who showed to advantage with the Legion juniors last year.

Ray Graupman will be New London's contribution to the umpiring staff Sunday and a large crowd is expected to be out to see just what the local lads have to offer.

The New London Miller High Life will open play in the Northern State league away from home at Manitowoc tomorrow. The team will carry the same roster as played here with the Neenah Merchants in a practice game last Sunday except for the addition of first baseman Johnny DeVau of Oshkosh. Sonny Carnevaugh of Marinette is expected to pitch for New London.

Union Officials, Koepke Firm Plan Parley Here Today

Aim for Settlement of Quarrel; Street Work Continues

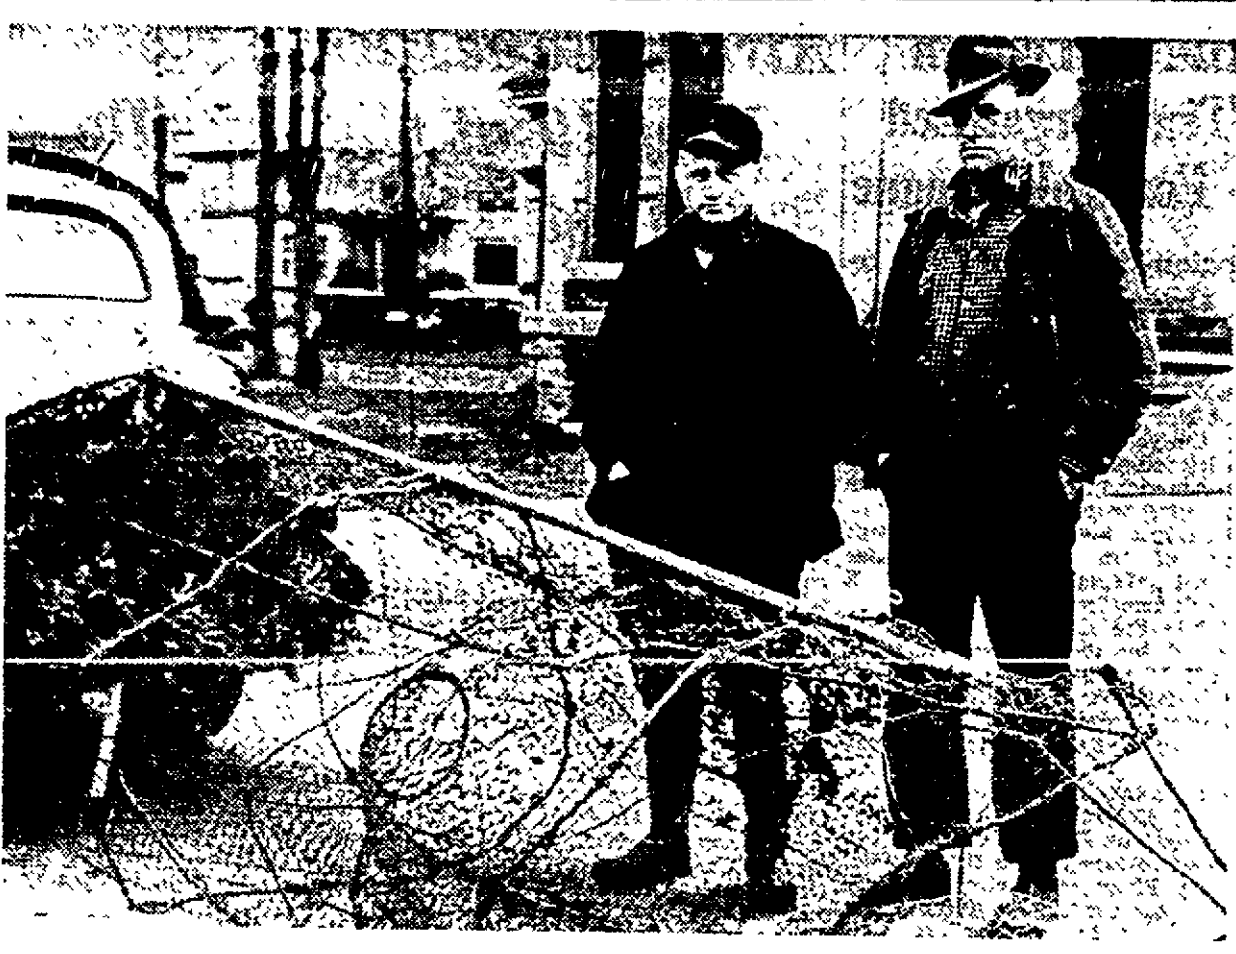

Officials of the Building Trades council and Koepke Construction company said this morning they would meet "some time this afternoon" to attempt settlement of the controversy which yesterday interrupted work on a paving project near the Lawe street bridge.

Charging that the construction company was violating its contract with the city by hiring workers from outside Appleton and not abiding by union regulations, Debenack and other union heads ordered 30 workers and truckdrivers off the job early yesterday afternoon.

Debenack based his action on a clause in the contract which specifies that the Koepke company must employ local men wherever possible, asserting that "more than half" the crew was from outside Appleton.

George Koepke said today that his company was employing local men and observing union regulations. Truckdrivers hauling materials to the scene of operations are in the employ of a supply company at Kenesh, he said, and not hired by the Koepke company. He said this was the "cause of the misunderstanding."

Koepke met with union heads and city officials informally yesterday afternoon at the city hall after the union ordered its men to quit work. He said that he hired new men after the union group abandoned the job yesterday and that work was proceeding today with a crew of about 25. The original crew numbered about 40.

CATCH FISHERMEN USING FISH TRAP ON EMBARRASS

Game Warden E. R. Kramer and Mike Nord kept watch on the fish trap, shown in the above picture, for four days and nights before they apprehended two fishermen who were operating it. The fishermen, John Nord and Leonard Henschel, Deer Creek, were taken into custody yesterday morning as they hauled up the trap from the Embarrass river in the town of Deer Creek. They pleaded guilty of using an unlicensed fish trap when they appeared in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan yesterday afternoon and the case was adjourned until Nov. 5. The men were released on bonds of $500 each. Kramer is shown left in the picture and Nord at the right. The trap has a 600-pound fish capacity. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Adjourn Session Of County Board Until August 16

Supervisors Dispose of Routine Business at Closing Day Meeting

Acting on a number of routine matters the county board yesterday afternoon ended its annual May session which opened Tuesday. The next session will begin Tuesday, Aug. 16.

A proposal to send Jack Frenz, county motorcycle officer, to the National Police academy of the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Washington during the first three months of next year was laid over until the August session.

The board, upon recommendation of the highway committee denied a petition asking for widening of two bridges west of Seymour on County Trunk G. The committee stated there were no available funds for the improvements at the present time and Supervisor Lathrop, chairman, suggested the matter be brought up at the November session when the budget is set.

Approval was given a resolution of the city council asking that attempts to relocate Highway 125 between Appleton and Superhighway 41 be abandoned.

Supervisor Eitemsek said he had heard rumors that the roof of the county asylum leaked and spiked them as being untrue.

It Is Said--

That a major problem involving the use of the American flag confronted city officials today and was successfully solved. An Appleton mother called city hall this morning and asked that the flags be put up on College avenue Sunday in recognition of Mother's day. The request raised the question of whether the city could be decorated with flags on Mother's day. A telephone call to an official of the American Legion settled the problem which turned out to be no problem at all because, the official said, there are certain days of the year when flags are displayed and Mother's day is not one of them.

Hopkins Thinks 3 Billion Needed For Relief Plans

require only grants from PWA. Consequently, they said, the subcommittee increased the grants figure by $300,000,000.

$1,667,000,000 Program

If all the $750,000,000 for grants is utilized on the present basis of federal donations of 45 per cent of the costs of local projects, committeemen said, it would result in a $1,677,000,000 works program.

Applications now pending with PWA request only $400,000,000. Committeemen said if relatively few additional applications were filed, a major portion of the $750,000,000 for grants might be used for federal projects.

Some legislators said Ickes had assured the war department part-of the PWA money would be used for army air bases and for improvement of army posts. Defense-minded congressmen have asked that this program include five gigantic air bases to guard the coasts and Alaska.

Other Projects

Flood control and river and harbor improvements are other possible federal projects.

The committee voted to make appropriations directly to the agencies which will spend the funds instead of giving the president a free hand to allocate them as he chooses.

Representative Woodruff (D-Va.) in charge of the measure, said this departure from past precedent in handling relief and public works funds had the president's approval. The legislation, carrying also $1,250,000,000 for the works progress administration, $175,000,000 for the farm security administration, $75,000,000 for the national youth administration, and $25,000,000 for federal buildings, is scheduled to come before the house Tuesday.

Announce Rules For Use of Net Courts in Parks

Bar Children After 4 O'clock and on Saturday Afternoons, Sundays

Rules and regulations which must be observed by tennis players who use courts in Appleton's parks were released today by the Appleton Park board. The rules become effective today except one which will become effective with the closing of schools.

During the school vacation period, no one under 16 years of age will be allowed to use the courts on Saturday afternoon, all day Sunday or on any afternoon after 4 o'clock. Netters under 16 may use the courts during the day up to 4 o'clock and on Saturday morning except if the courts are not in demand by eligible players.

There will be a limit of one set on practice matches except if no one is waiting for the courts. When congestion occurs, persons wishing to play are requested to ask occupants of a court for use of the court at the conclusion of the set. Players are then required to surrender the court when that set is over.

Players using one court may not reserve another until after they have completed the set in progress. The board ruled that players may ask for only one court at a time and then wait for that one.

Any players disobeying any of the rules will be barred from the courts for the balance of the year, the board warned. Courts may be reserved for tournament play by applying to the man in charge at least three days in advance.

The Potts-Wood plant will be kept in operation until improvements at the Outagamie plant are completed and then dairymen will haul to the latter plant.

Cardinal Board Turns Down Dykstra Proposal

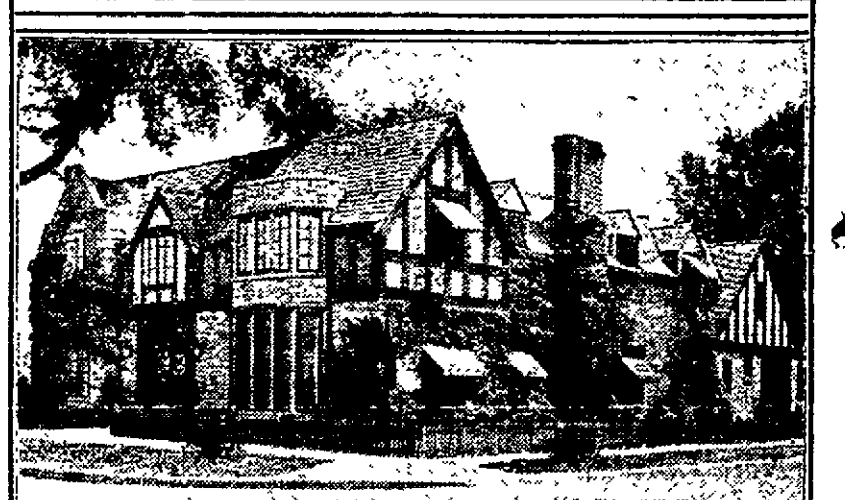

Madison—(AP)—The Daily Cardinal control board today rejected a proposal by President Clarence A. Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin to end the campus conflict resulting from the ouster of Richard J. Davis as executive editor of the student publication.

To break the deadlock and terminate publication of two editions of the Cardinal, one of which is being put out by the striking Davis faction, President Dykstra recommended yesterday that Davis be given a "trial period" appointment as editor.

Under the president's plan Davis would manage the Cardinal until Oct. 15 at which time the control board, consisting of students, would review his record and decide whether he should continue.

This proposal was flatly rejected by the board.

The university management has no control over the publication. The student elections committee is considering feasibility of a referendum to determine whether the board's policies are supported by the student body.

MR. HOOVER SPEAKS

Since former President Hoover can under no reasonable conditions be considered a candidate for future office his public declarations may be examined with that increasing degree of confidence which should attend opinions of those experienced people who speak but have no ax to grind.

Mr. Hoover's recent trip to Europe where he personally talked of the intimate details of government with presidents, kings and dictators alike, must have led him to a far more intense degree than the rest of us located so far away to wonder upon the awful phenomenon whereby "the torch of liberty has been dashed out by some sort of fascism in 14 nations of more than 240 million people," all of which was accomplished, the former president reminds us when they "undertook new deals of planned economy as panaceas to cure economic difficulties."

There are two views of every episode in life that a man may take, the view when he is close to it and the view in retrospect when he gets away and may look back more coolly upon what has happened. And the two views are amazingly different. A farmer once reminded a traveler on the road who spoke of the pleasant perfume wafting heavenward from new mown hay that hay had often a much different odor to the man who, soaked to the skin with sweat under a blazing sun, was pitching it.

In 1918, if it does us any good to be reminded of the past, America went to battle that the world might know the liberty of untrammelled people instead of the business of the galley slaves driven by lash and torch and gun in the hands of kings and kaisers. When we were close to the situation we drank deeply of the intoxication of words, slogans and good purposes and tore reserve away from the calm and steady anchors both of reality and experience. Looking back at that scene now and the way we were fatuously misled leads to derision at the sheeplike manner in which we trotted along behind the bellwether.

And history is repeating itself. We were just plain suckers in 1918 and so we have been again.

About five years ago, as Mr. Hoover reminds us, we started following "a sign marked Planned Economy, the way to end all depressions" with a sub-title called "The Abundant Life." We need to take inventory of our advance or retreat. If it was one of those popularly known Five Year Plans we have passed the five years. Insofar as poverty and human misery are concerned we observe that although as a nation we have gone over 20 billion more into debt we actually have today, according to the best estimates, about a million more unemployed than when we started.

Swell plan!

The Abundant Life is about to take its proper place in the mausoleum alongside the shrunken corpse that was known as "making the world safe for democracy."

A great many Americans knew that we were bound for the swamp as soon as they saw the details of the plan. But they were only derided because they didn't "do something."

Well, the other fellows did something. Giving Mr. Roosevelt his balance of three years, and assuming that he sticks to his plan, to Farley and Hopkins, to enormous fleets and shrunken acres, he should have the ill-kept, ill-housed and ill-clothed up to about two-thirds of the population at the conclusion of his term.

DILLINGER WAS ONLY ONE OF MANY

Indiana's prisons are a good deal like its politics, one can go in and out if he has the correct number of pieces of paper known as hundred dollar bills.

The recent escape from the Michigan City penitentiary in which the astuteness of the convicts in making their getaway is described in minute detail should raise the suspicion that their guards were either stolid or had become shortly theretofore suitably enriched.

Aside from prison breaks in force and by reason of great numbers it is about as easy for an untrussed convict to escape from a state's prison as a Sahara camel to slip his way through the eye of a needle.

Indiana's escapes are as notorious as Indiana's politics. The politics accounts for a certain class of guard, sometimes of warden too. When men get positions because of their value to some political machine instead of upon their merits they generally weigh those positions by "what there is in it," and are rather calloused in squeezing out of the job whatever may be found irrespective of their recreance to a trust.

That conclusion seems based on solid foundation by mere comparison of prison escapes in Indiana, and other states with a similar political life, and Wisconsin, and other states that put emphasis upon character in prison attendants from the warden down.

BONDING PUBLIC FUNDS

The recent experience at Racine, which is by no means an exception, may point to the necessity of a rule that should prevail regarding the bonds required by law of certain public officials.

There the clerk of the circuit court was short about $12,000 in his accounts. He had held office through two terms. The bond covering his first term was furnished by the Hartford Company, that covering his second term by the American Bonding Company.

When his shortage was discovered the bonding companies made an immediate audit of his books. There appears to have been no serious dispute concerning the amount of his embezzlement. But there is a dispute in relation to the term during which items were misappropriated.

Bonding companies fit to bear the name make a practice of readily conceding liability and paying promptly. In this respect they follow the good example set by life insurance companies whose checks follow swiftly after the funeral and, in many cases where the demise is publicized through wrecks and the publication of the names of the deceased, formalities are waived and payment made with immediacy.

But it will be seen that changing bonding companies on public officials may defeat one of the strong reasons for corporate securities, that is immediate replacement of funds so that public business may not be impaired, as it often is through large defalcations.

When men begin the dangerous dance of embezzlement they resort to many false motions in order to hide their actions. They confuse their books. They destroy or alter vouchers. It sometimes becomes extremely difficult to learn the exact time of the embezzlement and therefore to know which surety is liable.

If litigation between the sureties follows a year may be consumed in getting to final judgment. Meanwhile, as with these funds in court, much embarrassment to individuals may ensue. The fact that they may eventually recover interest on the amount is far from recovering the advantage that accompanies prompt payment.

It follows that wherever possible the same bonding companies should carry each individual's risk throughout his public service.

SALLY GOES TO HARVARD

Fair Harvard has always been the college which more or less stood as the symbol of higher education in America.

Yet Harvard too has stood the brunt of the criticism that such institutions of higher education teach students facts, figures, attitudes and mannerisms but do not provide them peaceably with an intellect.

The truth is that no institution can endow a youth with such a possession but may try its utmost to make the student realize the need for intellectual proficiency.

Despite this fact there was great interest aroused by the recent announcement that Sally Rand was scheduled to speak at a meeting of Harvard freshmen on the subject, "How to Be Intelligent though Educated."

Miss Rand as much as any other person in the country has always been concerned with things that are not as they seem. She is associated with the rise to fame of such biological presentations as the "fan dance" and the "bubble dance."

But Miss Rand has always claimed that her fan and bubble dance were not really what her audiences saw in them, not crude displays of physical attainments but expression of "true art."

Miss Rand is the one person who may be able to make Harvard freshmen realize their erring ways. If she can get them to understand that her fan dance is true art, she can also persuade them that when they graduate they may be educated without being intelligent.

Opinions Of Others

However much authority the members of congressional committees may feel that they have, they are still the servants of the people and should treat witnesses who appear before them courteously. These witnesses are not convicted criminals. They are there to enable congress to get the truth about the subject that is under investigation; but they are not there to endure a barrage of offensive questions and statements designed to confuse and convict them. The committee is not a court; if it were it might have better manners.

In the examination of Sumner Gerard, of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, by the senate lobby investigating committee, he was treated in a way that justified him in losing his temper, unfortunately as it may have been. More than one member of the committee rudely addressed him. What ever may be the charges against any organization or its representatives, those representatives, when they appear before a congressional committee, have a right to be treated as witnesses and not as defendants in a criminal case.

The treatment of Gerard was not unprecedented; it was not even unusual. There are many such cases, notably that of Dr. Townsend, who walked out of the committee room, and would have had to serve thirty days in jail if the president had not pardoned him. The committee feel that they can prevent witnesses from having legal counsel or from reading a statement of their case; and the committee

CLEARING UP POINTS DEPT.

Jonah:

To me your most interesting column to date, the discussion on contemporary music aired Wednesday, struck me right between the eyes. However, I believe I can clear up a few points about the similarity of "The Donkey's Serenade" and the older "Chansonette." According to the label on my recording of "Chansonette" by Bert Ambrose and his orchestra, (Decca 584-A) this number was composed by Rudolph Friml and not by Romberg, Gerishwin, or anyone else, "The Donkey's Serenade" recorded by Ted Fio Rito and his orchestra, (Decca 1614-A) reveals itself to be "From M-G-M Production 'The Firefly'" and as far as composers go it boasts "(Friml-Stothart-Wright-Forrest)".

From this collection of strange hieroglyphics we may gather that three Hollywood song writers were put to work by their studio for the purposes of "improving" one of Friml's sweetest, most beautiful melodies. It seems the motion picture in question advertised all music to be written by Friml; but Friml had, inconveniently enough, neglected to write a song that could be used in the stagecoach sequence, so a rhythmic superstructure was written about the theme of "Chansonette."

Personally, I prefer the original "Chansonette."

Hoping for more musical rambles in the near future—

—Willy

I recalled that "The Donkey's Serenade" was from M-G-M's "The Firefly," but failed to say so. Thanks, much, Willy, for an illuminating piece of information which is news to me and may be to lots of people.

"MOTHER"

Within that sanctuary of our heart
When reflection is our own,
We keep a holy of holies
That is meant for Mother — alone

When we review the years from childhood
We remember the things she said,
How well we know now, the wisdom
In the book of life she read;

Those who have sought much learning
Thought they'd garner every word,
But the simple reflections of Mother
Above all else is heard.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

TWILIGHT

That time of day supporting infant night
Is loveliest—
The blue and fading light,
The swiftly glowing West;
The peace of birds grown mute;
The first moonbeams,
And the slow dark, inviting the pursuit
Of winged dreams.

The end of every journey is the best,
And maybe Death
Is of all pilgrimages loveliest!
The failing breath
May be the signal of a happy birth
In Paradise.
When the tired soul, relinquishing the earth,
To heaven flies!

members stretch what they have misconceived as their authority to the ultimate limit.

One reason for that state of mind, apparently, is that in many, if not in most instances the committee does not undertake to get the truth about the case at hand, but to convict those under examination of some charge that may not be included in the investigation resolution, either for political purposes or as a satisfaction of personal prejudice. Congressional investigations are undoubtedly desirable and even necessary at times, but they should be courteously conducted without bias, and not as they so frequently are nowadays.—Indianapolis News.

Personal Health Talks

TEA FOR BURNS

The tea-leaves poultice as a good first aid dressing of scalds or burns was described here sometime ago. Perhaps I had better quote the directions from that article:

"Way back in 1871, Dr. W. H. Searles, Warsaw, Wisconsin, published in the Chicago Medical Examiner (April issue) his homely remedy for burns, reporting its successful use in the case of a child who had been terribly burned over the entire front of the body, arms and legs, by a kettle of boiling water the child had upset upon itself. Dr. Searles prepared a large poultice of tea leaves, softening the leaves with hot water, and applied it while yet warm, upon cotton wool (I suggest sterile gauze would be better) over the entire burned surface. 'Almost like magic the sufferings abated, and without the use of any other anodyne (which means pain-reliever) the child soon fell into a quiet sleep. In a few hours I removed the application, and reapplied it where it was necessary (that is, a freshly made poultice). I found the parts discolored and apparently fanned. Tenderness had nearly disappeared. The little patient made a good recovery in about three weeks. Since then I have recommended tea leaves on several occasions, till now I have come to prefer this treatment to all other remedies in the first stage of burns and scalds. . . ."

I, O! Doc Brady, suggest that the tea leaves be made into poultice with boiling water, rather than just hot water.

"Green tea is ok for the purpose but black tea contains more tannin and would probably be even better."

A Calcutta physician describes in the Indian Medical Gazette, December 1937, and adds his praises to the tea treatment for burns. He advises that six teaspoonfuls of black tea be steeped for ten minutes in six cups of boiling water. Soak four layers of clean handkerchiefs or sheeting in the hot tea and apply as warm compresses to the burned or scalded area, with a light bandage to hold the dressing in place. Soak the bandage with the tea whenever it gets at all dry in the first 24 hours. After that let it remain undisturbed for ten days—no new dressing in that time. If the patient is doing well, the dressing is left on for two weeks. Generally physicians give burn patients a prophylactic dose of anti-tetanus serum the first day. In this country this precaution is necessary in the case of burns by fireworks, cap pistol, wadding, gunpowder, firecrackers and the like, for it is in these cases, perhaps minor injuries, that lockjaw infection is most likely to occur in America.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Three Or Four Pipefuls

Do any particular harmful results come from smoking three or four pipefuls of tobacco a day when the smoker does not inhale? What is your opinion of tobacco from which the nicotine is said to be removed? (A. H.)

Answer—Now, now, Al, you're trying to put me on the spot. Drop in and try a pipeful of my mixture and I'll tell you what I think about everything.

Vitamin G

How can I get vitamin G in sufficient amount to aid in correcting skin trouble? (C. W.)

Answer—Richest natural food source is wheat germ. If you can't get wheat germ, plain wheat of course contains it. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for using plain wheat in the daily dietary. Dried, pasteurized brewer's yeast (not the yeast used for baking) is rich in vitamin G—has been sold extensively in the south by grocers for the prevention of pellagra.

Medical Vagary

Friend says her doctor instructed her not to use ice made in her electric refrigerator, when she was convalescing from an operation, but to use only ice made in an ice factory. My friend's nurse also said only factory ice should be used for cooling drinks etc. (H. H. K.)

Answer—No reason why ice made in the household refrigerator should not be as pure and as suitable as ice made elsewhere. (Copyright, 1938)

Your Birthday

"TAURUS"

If May 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

Many mothers have sacrificed loved devotedly and in numerous ways proved their acceptance of the responsibilities of motherhood in the truest sense of the word. Such lovable women may find great happiness this Mother's Day in their children's expressions of appreciation. Any evidence of a lack of sentimental regard will be contributing cause to much of this day's existing unhappiness. The cheerful giver is apt to find a reward for his generosity, in an unexpected manner. The average person's power of recuperation from the ills that flesh is heir to, is likely to enable him to cast off readily any ailments that have suddenly caused discomfort. Degradatory remarks should not be made this day, for their pernicious influence might be far-reaching and react unfavorably on those responsible for them. Those who "lay down the law" in no uncertain way, are likely to find themselves not immune to the very thing that aroused their ire. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are seeking a matrimonial partner, might find it good judgment to be ready this day to concede any debatable point that might lead to a disagreeable argument.

If a woman and May 8 is your birthday, you ought to have an unusually large number of fine qualities. Although you are full of "pep", vivacious, popular, and probably active socially, you are capable of doing some very serious thinking and constructive work. You ought to have a keen insight into human nature, and so have a liberal attitude towards its weaknesses. Through trained nursing, teaching, musical or dramatic work, writing, painting or selling your financial future may be made secure. There appears to be no reason why you should not be able to make the man you marry very happy, and find him able to make you happy too.

The child born May 8, should be taught that self-respect is essential to success. This youngster may have a good deal of independence, and some talent that is worth while developing. Future conditions appear to be auspicious for a successful career.

If a man and May 8 is your natal day, you perhaps have the gift of making valuable friendships and contacts that should help you get some excellent financial results. Chemistry, law, engineering, agriculture, mining, journalism, acting or work of a promotional nature are among the activities through which prosperity is likely to come to you.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—One day last November I was walking up Fifth avenue when I noticed a girl sitting at a table in Child's restaurant. You could see her very clearly through the plate glass windows and she seemed so melancholy that after I had walked past the place I retraced my steps and went inside.

She was a blonde, there was a cup of coffee in front of her and she was smoking a cigarette. Or rather, she held a lighted cigarette in her hand. From time to time she tapped the edge of the saucer with it to free the ash, but she did this subconsciously, and it was clear that her thoughts were a thousand miles away.

Although she seemed vaguely familiar, I was unable to place her. I dropped down at a table not far removed and studied her for a long time, and it seemed at the moment that I had never seen anyone as dejected or unhappy.

Well, after a while, I got up and went out and after a little while I didn't think of her again until, a week later, I saw a two-column picture of her smiling out of a morning newspaper. There was nothing unhappy about this pose. Her name was Julie Haydon and she had been engaged to play the ingenue in a new play, "Shadow and Substance."

The rest is very recent and gratifying Broadway history. I think there can be no question that Julie Haydon is the dramatic find of the season. In this play about Catholic Ireland she plays a little drudge whose faith and humility teaches an austere big-wig of the church that religion, after all, should not be based on a classical, remote concept of God.

The critics saluted her and the columnists wrote long, enthusiastic pieces about her. She was interviewed and her picture began appearing in all the magazines. This month you will find her on the cover of a monthly magazine.

Paul Vincent Carroll, who wrote "Shadow and Substance," is an Irish school teacher who lives in Scotland, and not long ago he crossed the ocean to see the play that is making him independently wealthy. He is still here, and he thinks Eddie Dowling, who produced it, deserves a medal for casting Miss Haydon in the role of Bridget, the little servant girl.

Meanwhile, some day soon I will have a date with Julie Haydon, to sit down and talk, and although she

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Some of Congress's firmest advocates of the neutrality act have gone stale on it for one immediate reason—Spain.

Under the act, this government prohibits shipment of war supplies to either side in Spain. Observers generally concede that the result has been to deprive the Loyalist Spanish government of any supplies while the Franco forces have continued receiving arms, ammunition and soldiers from Germany and Italy.

The cold logic which dictated the neutrality policy was that this country should keep out of European affairs even if it meant that the Loyalist Spanish government would be defeated. But the underdog plight of the Loyalists has helped to change the minds of many not only in Congress but outside. The members have been drenched with a deluge of postcards and letters demanding immediate repeal of the neutrality act before the Loyalist defense crumbles.

There is almost equally intense pressure from the other side, for many individuals and organizations, notably Catholic, endorse the insurgent side and would like to win.

Chance Of Policy

Yet some of the change in attitude has come because of another phase of the matter.

For a number of years the United States has followed a policy in Latin America and China of giving aid to the governments in power to suppress revolutionary movements. It has been written into law for these two zones and has been looked upon as a guide for American conduct in relation to revolutions in other countries, although it had not the binding effect of law elsewhere.

Yet in the case of Spain, Congress jumped over the traces. In January, 1937, it looked as if Spain might be the battlefield for a new World war, with England and France on the Loyalist side, and Germany and Italy on the other with the Franco insurgents. Hands off, was the plea, and a bill was hurried through to prohibit shipments of arms to either side.

Muddling The Muddle

Congress was spurred on to hasty action by an attempt of a New Jersey second-hand dealer to send a shipload of old planes to the Loyalists. He got his ship out ahead of the embargo—but the insurgents captured it.

Some members of Congress now fear the departure from the policy of aiding only established governments will rise to plague this country. They have appealed privately to President Roosevelt and the State Department to proclaim the embargo at an end, but naturally, the buck is passed right back.

Under the regular neutrality act the President would be able to end the embargo as soon as the civil war ceased to menace the peace and security of the United States—which apparently it has.

But in its haste to stop the shipment of second-hand planes Congress passed a special act which permits the President to end the embargo only when the civil war ends—regardless of whether it any longer endangers the peace and security of the United States.

And there the muddle remains.

doesn't know it, we aren't going to talk in any hotel bar or restaurant. Not if I can help it. I'm going to take her over to a Child's restaurant on Fifth avenue and sit her down at that table where I saw her, alone and melancholy, one grey afternoon last November.

Spook Show Will Be Staged Tonight

11:30 Stage Performance Will Be Presented at Rio Theater

Seekers of the unusual in entertainment should find their ultimate at the Rio theater where Jaclar's Midnight Spook Show is scheduled for a stage performance beginning at 11:30 p. m. tonight.

There will be plenty of mystery, thrills, laughs and ghostly writings, rappings and talking skulls as well as a spiritualistic seance demonstration and modern magic. Ghosts are said to even leave the stage at times and mingle with the audience.

Ghosts, bats, skulls, balls of fire, singing violins and eerie spiders are only a single part of the "flesh" show to be given. Modern magic in its most mystic form and actual reproductions of famous spiritualistic seances under full stage lights as well as baffling escapes from apparently fool-proof cabinets round out the bill.

Spook parties are being planned by many who wish to attend in groups to avoid the necessity of leaving the theater alone after a session with the eerie ghosts.

On the screen, thrill seekers tonight will find more to keep them on the edges of their seats and make their jaws ache with laughter. It is a special showing of "One Frightened Night" featuring Mary Carlisle, Wallace Ford and a host of other well known screen personalities. A ghostly Laurel and Hardy comedy and colored cartoon will complete the bill.

The theater will be cleared at the conclusion of the regular performance tonight, and the doors opened at 11:30 p. m. for the spook show which will start about 11:45 p. m.

'Test Pilot' Current Attraction at Rio

A motion picture now tells the story of the test pilot, the most daring of modern heroes who wagers their lives against the strength of an untamed airplane.

"Test Pilot," which opened a 5-day run yesterday at the Rio Theatre is the story of a man whose life is a constant gamble with death. It is strong drama, but so realistic and so authentic in all flying sequences that every aviator in the land will undoubtedly point to a milestone in the progress of motion pictures.

Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore head the cast. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in bringing their first aviation picture in more than two years to the screen, spared nothing to make it the true story of modern aviation. That it contains thrills, dangerous dives and spectacular flying is due to the very nature of a man whose life is a daily bout with death.

The startlingly realistic air scenes were made possible by a newly-perfected device for aerial photography, making "Test Pilot" the most spectacular aviation picture ever produced. The thrills kept the audience on the edge of their seats from the opening title to the final fade-out.

The story, by Lieutenant-Commander Frank Wead, is the factual relation of a test pilot's life, uncensored, unembellished. It tells of the aviator who marries an unsophisticated girl, against his pal's advice, who takes this girl with him into the mad world of life which follows his path as the weaker eddies are drawn in by strong currents.

The relation of her fight to win him away from the mysterious "lady of the sky," the love of daring death, makes for some of the simplest, yet most powerful drama that has been seen on the screen in many years.

Gable handles his part superbly, returning to the type of characterization which has made him the number one star of the world. Myrna Loy, as an unsophisticated yet brilliant country girl, is the central figure of an unusual triangle.

Hand firearms were first used in the 15th century.

Flowers and Plants Making Record Progress This Year

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Not for years have we had a spring season in which plants both the cultivated and the native species, have made the record-breaking progress they have this year. This speeding up in the appearance of blossom and leaf and in general plant growth is due, of course, to the frequent periods of mild weather and to the abundance of rainfall which have characterized the season since early March.

A number of persons have reported finding wild flowers in blossom earlier this year than ever before. On the R. A. Ryan farm home, a few miles south of DePere, snow trilliums were found in blossom on March 29, which is about two weeks earlier than during an average spring. The snow trillium, a dwarf variety, is considered one of the rarer plants in the state and the stand found near DePere is said to be one of the largest.

An April 23, accompanied by a group of wild flower lovers, I visited the Ryan farm. We were all most too late to see the snow trilliums. Only a few faded blossoms were left but we found a number of other wild flowers in bloom. The faun lily, formerly called adder's tongue or dog-tooth violet, was just beginning to open. This was the white variety which appears to be less common than the yellow.

Hepaticas in Bloom

A few hepaticas and bloodroots were still in blossom and we found quite a number of other flowers which usually blossom in May. These were spring beauties, buttercups, purple cress, cut-leaved toothwort, marsh marigold and two varieties of violets, the pale dog violet and the darker woolly violet. The two anemones were also found, the pink blossoms of the rue anemone a little more advanced than the single flower of the windflower, or wood anemone.

Several wild mustards are in blossom and some of these are not as weedy in habit as the common yellow mustard or charlock. The purple cress and the cut-leaved toothwort are two mustards with decidedly attractive flowers. Both have four petals, one of the common characteristics of the family, and a peppery taste when the stem or root is bitten. The purple cress has a bulbous root, like the early spring cress or cuckoo flower found in the southern part of the state.

During cold springs it is often difficult to find more than a few wild flowers in blossom by the first of May but this year I have counted more than 30 varieties by that time. Even a few large-flowering trilliums were beginning to open.

This showy flower usually blossoms from May 10 until the last of the month.

Trilliums Abundant

For a number of years we have been visiting either the state parks in Door county or the Menominee reservation on Memorial day, chiefly because of the brilliant showing made by the trilliums at that time. In these places and in other heavily-wooded sections of the state they can be seen by the

'Submarine D-1' Showing at Elite

Pat O'Brien and George Brent Co-Star in Navy Picture

Proclaimed as the greatest motion picture ever made with an undersea boat as its subject and locale, "Submarine D-1" has been booked as the feature attraction at the Elite Theatre, today and Sunday.

It is a Warner Bros. melodrama co-starring Pat O'Brien and George Brent, and featuring Wayne (Kid Galahad) Morris. In the making of it the United States Navy Department deserves as much credit as the movie folk, for it threw open to the Warners its submarine establishments at San Diego, Cocos Coco in the Panama Canal Zone, and Newport, R. I.

The story of the D-1 was written by Commander Frank Wead, U. S. N., who was the author of "Casting Zero" and other stage and screen hits. Technical advisors were present at all times during the making of the picture, and guaranteed its authenticity.

Pat O'Brien and Wayne Morris play a couple of young submarine crewmen who have developed two great inventions—a device to shoot men safely to the ocean's surface if a ship is sunk, and another device to raise the U-Boat itself.

In the story the D-1 is rammed and sunk during some war game maneuvers, and the boys' inventions get a chance to show their worth. They are successful in saving the sub's whole crew and its heroic commander.

thousands at the edges of woods or bordering the roads.

This year they will probably be past the blossoming stage by the end of the month. Perhaps it will be just as well. On each of these trips I have seen tourists gather large bouquets of the flowers, often discarding them before the end of the day. In state parks and forests the trilliums are doubly protected, by state law which forbids picking of any variety of trillium, and by the generally accepted unwritten law that flowers in state parks should not be picked.

The large-flowered trillium grows so abundantly in the northern part of the state that many of us may wonder why it was put on the protected list. Although the plant is a perennial the root dies out if the leaves are picked, and the leaves invariably are picked

OPENS SUNDAY

The first sea story filmed in Technicolor comes to the screen when "EBB TIDE" opens at the RIALTO THEATRE, Kaukauna, for Sunday and Monday.

Taken from a story by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osburn, "Ebb Tide" presents the famed European character actor, Oscar Homolka, ably assisted by Ray Hilland, and Francis Farmer.

because they grow just below the blossom.

Seeds Appearing

Seeds as well as blossoms are beginning to make their appearance at this time. If you look under an elm tree you will find numerous small green discs scattered over the ground. These are seeds of the tree which are ripening and falling unusually early. Squirrels feed on the elm seeds so do also a number of seed-eating birds.

A daily inspection of maple trees will show you how the pistillate flowers of that tree are turning to winged samaras. On the red maple the keys are well developed. The growing maple keys always remind me of the "shoulder pads" or undeveloped wings of a young green grasshopper. The process of transformation from flower to fruit has always interested me, especially in those plants whose seeds are borne in an unusual manner, as the seeds of the milkweed or the jack-in-the-pulpit.

In the latter part the flowers are borne on the spike, or "Jack," and when the flowering season is over only the pistil remains on the spike. The sheath enclosing the spike withers and curls around the swelling pistil. In a short time the lower part of the pistil, the ovary, takes on the appearance of a berry. The compact clusters of berries of the jack-in-the-pulpit are first green, and then in late summer turn red.

Musical Comedy Will Be On Monday, Tuesday

A brilliant cast of comedy players in a fast moving story of young love, done to the music from the pens of outstanding tunesmiths and produced with enough glitter and girls to hold the most rabid of musical comedy fans—that's "Thrill of a Lifetime," the merry melange of mirth and music which will be shown at the Elite Theatre

Comedy Is Booked For 3-Day Showing

Kay Francis, Pat O'Brien Teamed in 'Women Are Like That'

A new co-starring team makes its screen debut at the Appleton Theatre Wednesday, May 11, for a three-day engagement with the initial performance of a new Warner Bros. comedy called "Women Are Like That."

Curiously, although they have been at the same studio for several years, the lovely, dark Kay Francis and the genial, rapid-talking Irishman, Pat O'Brien, have never before worked in a picture together. Years ago on the stage, they were teamed up in "Nigger Rich."

Pat and Kay are said to make an ideal movie team. "Women Are Like That" is a gay comedy revolving around the colorful and exciting advertising business. You can imagine Pat with his staccato patter selling advertising accounts and you can also fancy Kay wielding her feminine charms for the same purpose.

While this movie is by no means a fashion show, the advance notices from the producers say that Miss Francis (always listed among the ten best dressed women of the world) wears no less than thirty-five different costumes created by the Warner stylist, Orry Kelly.

The original story of "Women Are Like That" was by A. H. Z. Carr and was printed in a national magazine under the title of "Return from Limbo."

In the cast that supports Miss Francis and Mr. O'Brien, are such notables as Ralph Forbes and Melville Cooper.

The associate feature on this program is "Scandal Street," a dramatic story of a girl whose reputation is ruined and life threatened by the idle gossip of small town women. The leading roles are ably handled by Lew Ayres, Louise Campbell and Roscoe Karns. Also in the cast are Porter-Hall, Edgar Kennedy and Virginia Weidler.

Miss Campbell, as a small-town librarian, becomes innocently involved in a murder charge. When she stepped out, the neighbors stepped in—and pinned a murder on her.

on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days.

The Yacht Club Boys, Judy Canova and lovely Dorothy Lamour from the radio — that romantic "prancing," dancing pair of lovers, Johnny Downs and Eleanor Whitney — Betty Grable, the girl whom artists call the nearest approach to perfection in form — Ben Blue, Leif Erickson, Larry Crabbe, Franklin Pangborn and The Panchoettes, one of the most highly trained chorus troupes in show business — that's the cast!

Produced by Fanchon, Hollywood's only woman director and directed by George Archambaud, "Thrill of a Lifetime" is a highly irresponsible story of show business and the summer camp business. The two merge when a young vaudeville team, played by Downs and Miss Whitney, and a young playwright, portrayed by Erickson, attempt to prove their worth to a producer by taking over a camp.

APPEAR IN 'TRUE CONFESSION'

When the biggest little liar in the world is married to a guy who thinks that truth is the most important thing in the world, you can expect fireworks! And when you know that the parties to this scrap are lovely Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray, aided and abetted in their merry madness by John Barrymore, you know that the fight is the gay, romantic kind that'll have you chuckling for a long, long time! It happens in Paramount's "True Confession," which opens at the Elite Theatre for 3 days starting next Wednesday.

'Fools for Scandal' Is Booked at Rialto

A riotous comedy with music—and Carole Lombard and Fernand Gravel—is "Fools for Scandal," which will open today at the Appleton Theatre for a 4-day showing.

As if gorgeous Miss Lombard, she of the mad antics, were not enough, the picture should really teach the femme fans how to say — Fernand Gravel, (it's Gravel in the billing). The handsome French musical comedy star, making his second American appearance—the first was in "The King and the Chorus Girl"—surprises his most ardent fans with a song routine that's well worth the price of admission alone.

A swell score of music is by Rodgers and Hart, a pair that's recent ones being "The Lady Is a Tramp," and "Where or When?" The two numbers in "Fools for Scandal" destined for equal popularity are "How Can You Forget" and "There's a Boy in the Hat," the latter being part of the "Le Petit Harlem" cabaret sequence which was specially handled by Dance Director Bobby Connolly.

The story itself is a wow. Miss Lombard is an American movie star in Europe to see the sights.

Gravel, an impoverished French baron who does not use his title because of a lack of coin of the realm, shows off his culinary ability for a gag at a party. The haughty actress offers him a job as her cook to embarrass him. He accepts after which the film continues its fast pace as Miss Lombard is revealed in vivid detail.

Doctor Declares Syphilis Can be Curbed in U. S.

Says Wisconsin Leading Nation in Control Of Disease

Neenah—Syphilis could be wiped out in one generation in United States if people would cooperate and the government would spend as much money for eradication of the disease as it spends on one battle-ship, Dr. Milton Trautman, Madison, told the Albright Brotherhood membership of First Evangelical church, Friday evening at the church.

Wisconsin has a record of only 2 adults in each 100 with syphilis as compared with the 1 adult in 10 ratio in United States, Dr. Trautman stated, as he pointed out that Wisconsin was leading in low percentage of the state health department. The national government's activities in control of syphilis are being modeled after the Wisconsin health department program.

Dr. Trautman opened his discussion Friday evening tracing the historical development of the control of disease, using as a concrete example of the progress in control of disease, the decrease in diphtheria deaths.

In 1900, 4,000 deaths were recorded in the state from diphtheria, and in 1937, with a considerable increase in population during those 37 states, only 11 deaths were recorded from diphtheria.

The average age of death has also been lengthened from 48 years in 1908 to 57 in 1937, Dr. Trautman stated as he pointed out that the department of health was also extending its research work to diseases of older people such as heart trouble, cancer, hardening of the arteries.

"Nothing much was done about syphilis until very recently," Dr. Trautman said, "because of the social stigma of the disease. However, it is now to be controlled and eradicated. It must not be treated as a disgrace but as a disease. About 50 per cent of the people with syphilis contract it innocently."

Relief Investigator Entitled to Legal Pay

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — A member of the soldiers relief commission may be paid at the legal per diem rate for services rendered in investigating the need of applications for aid, Attorney General Orland S. Loomis today advised District Attorney Lewis C. Magnusen of Winnebago county.

"It is obvious that it was the intention of the legislature to permit reasonable investigation of the financial conditions of applicants for relief. Otherwise they would not have provided that the commission be satisfied that the persons named on the list are entitled to assistance. It would be impossible in many instances, in fact in practically every instance in counties having a large population for the commission to have any knowledge of the need of an applicant without making some sort of an investigation, and certainly there would be no necessity for the full membership of the commission to conduct such an investigation."

"If the full membership of the commission were to conduct each investigation, it would mean that the overhead expense of administering the relief provided for by the statute would be exorbitant," Loomis' letter to Magnusen said.

Mrs. Grist who is showing her daughter some of the souvenirs and treasures which she brought back from a trip to Mexico recently, is president of Appleton Delphian club for next year and an active member of Appleton Woman's club.

Kaukauna Track Squad Will Feel Loss of Peterson

Star Performer Out Because of Age; Team Meets New London Monday

Kaukauna — Kaukauna High school tracksters will be the underdogs when the strong New London squad comes here for a dual meet Monday afternoon. The Kaws have won three meets this year, defeating Kimberly and Chilton in a triangular affair, and Seymour and Neenah in dual events, but do not figure to outscore the Bulldogs, especially without the services of Bill Peterson.

Peterson, who scored at least 18 points in every meet he entered, will be 20 years old tomorrow and ineligible for further competition. He was almost certain to win the high and low hurdles and broad jump and holds the present conference record in the high hurdles. The Kaws, with Peterson showing the way by scoring 18 points, defeated Neenah by 20 points. New London holds a 40 point win over the Rockets, so Kaukauna chances appear slim.

The most probable Kaw winners are Lambie in the 440 yard dash and 220 and Meyer or Schubring in the low hurdles. Kaws who may upset the dope and come in first are Foxgrover in the 100, Bob Cooper in the half mile, Elmer Vandenberg in the mile, Bill Alger in the discus and Schubring in the high hurdles. Schubring has been coming along fast in that event, running on Peterson's heels at Neenah. In the half mile Lee Cooper and Dave Nelson may edge out Bob Cooper.

The meet will end the regular season for the Kaws, but on Saturday day they will go to Neenah to participate in the state district meet, winners of which go to the state meet. On Saturday, May 21, the conference meet will be held at Neenah.

Second Marriage Can Be Happier Than First One

BY DOROTHY DIN

Dear Miss Dix—I was a widow and I married a man whose wife had been dead two years. Before marriage we discussed our former marriages to the fullest extent and agreed that we were beginning a new life together and that we would not expect each other to be like our first mates. In spite of this, however, in less than two months after we were married my husband found that he was not reconciled to his wife's death and that, although he had no fault to find with me, I could not take her place. I was well enough as I was, but I was just not like she was. His disappointment brought on a nervous breakdown and he requested me to leave him, which I did. I love him very much, but he says that our marriage was a sad mistake and that he does not want to go on with it. There is to be a meeting soon for us to come to terms and I don't know how to prepare myself for it. What can I do?

DOROTHY DIN

Answer:

It seems to me that the best thing you can do is to spar for time. Do not consent to an immediate divorce. Tell him that you want to wait for a couple of years before making a final decision on the subject. Perhaps if you give him a chance to get good and lonesome and to miss the ministrations of a wife, he will come to his senses and realize that a live woman who loves him is better than mooning over the memory of a dead one.

Your husband has certainly put you in a very embarrassing position, but if you hope to win, you must meet the situation with poise and dignity. Don't try to force yourself on him and make him keep his marriage vows. It will only make him hate you, for there is nothing that a man resents in a woman as much as her holding him up. Be independent.

Tell him you will be no man's unwanted wife. But that you want him to be sure of himself before he makes a final decision that is unjust to you. Don't reproach him. Show him that you understand his feelings and are sorry for him. Don't write him beseeching letters. Don't tell him that you still love him and are pining for him. Just let him alone and let the lonesomeness sink in, which he remembers what a sensible, considerate woman you are. And unless he is absolutely obsessed by the ghost of his first wife you will get him back.

Your husband has an unusually bad case of the dear-departed-Maria complex, but most widowers have it in one form or another and it is one of the afflictions with which nearly all second wives have to contend. And it is a queer and inexplicable thing, too, for the very men who are always flinging No. 1 in No. 2's teeth, didn't regard her as such a paragon while she was alive. It was only after she had passed on that she became the model of perfection upon which they expect No. 2 to live herself.

There are very few second wives who are not called upon to listen to a panegyric about Maria's bread and Maria's thrift and home-staying qualities, and how she always wore a hat two seasons and never dreamed of stepping out anywhere except to church, until Mrs. Number 2 feels like bursting into tears and crying out: "Say no more. No one else could possibly regret her death as much as I do."

Of course, it is a lovely thing for a husband to forget all of his wife's faults and remember only her virtues after she is dead, but it is mighty hard on the second wife who can't be a duplicate of the loved and lost and wouldn't be if she could, and who is filled with a bitter jealousy of her than she could be of any siren. For she could do battle with a live woman, but she is helpless to contend with the image a man builds up of a woman who never existed.

A second marriage can be far happier than a first marriage, because mature men and women are more capable of picking out suitable mates than boys and girls are, and age and experience have taught them the art of living with people without friction. But a second marriage can only be a successful one when a man and woman bury their memories in the graves of their dead, and hold no post-mortems.

Dear Miss Dix—I am in the sophomore year in college and have very poor grades and have so far failed on my record. Am having to work my way through college. Do you think I should drop out of school and go to work, or try to graduate? I fear I am lacking in either brains or initiative in not being able to make my grades. R.S.M.

Answer: Not every boy is college material. Perhaps you would succeed better in business than you do at school. Talk it over with your dean of men and take his advice. (Copyright 1938)

Good Taste Today
By Emily Post

GLOVES

Dear Mr. Post: Somewhere I have gotten the impression that in most formal situations white gloves are required. I don't even know if this impression has come from an authentic beginning or whether it is something I took for granted because those around me wore white gloves on formal occasions. Will you explain about the present-day use of gloves and whether at formal weddings and big important dances one should restrain any preference for color and wear white.

Answer: White is of course the color of evening gloves for a man, but a woman may wear gloves of any color she chooses. Black, white, gray and fawn have always been equally appropriate, but in the present day, violent colors are accepted by fashion. Whether they can also be accepted by the formalists, I think, upon the formality of the occasion. From the standpoint of taste

Many Ways To Thank Mothers

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Year after year I repeat the same message. There's infinite beauty in Mother's Day. Skeptics claim it is commercialized. If it is, what of it? Let us be grateful to those who thought of setting at least one day aside when we can pause, in this hectic, modern, busy life of ours and pay homage to Mother.

Yes, there's infinite beauty in Mother's Day—in the spirit of the holiday. If you catch and feel that spirit, if you are fortunate enough to have a Mother you must feel awe and happiness on that day. If you catch that spirit, you simply cannot feel depressed or sullen or blue or harbor ill-will to anyone.

Various Ways
Yes, there's infinite beauty and infinite variety in the ways and means of expressing your love and regard for her.

You can send her flowers or a plant. You can plan a little surprise such as arranging a luncheon for the family, and do give her a holiday from cooking and care. You can try to call in friends she hasn't seen in a long time and would be thrilled to see, or perhaps part of the family from distant cities. You can try to relieve it in some small measure from worries and heartaches. You can get her to really play that one day by having her to something unusual. Perhaps she likes to visit or play with her grandchildren; perhaps she would enjoy an automobile ride into the country or a trip to the seashore; she might like to see a movie or hear a concert. It doesn't have to be big. Mothers have such a happy faculty of feeling gratitude for every little thing.

And it is not unkind to treat her to something lovely, something to wear, perhaps, some little trinket that she might like but would think too flippant to buy for herself, some little sensible thing like a warm bed jacket or something to flatter her beauty and her vanity. Here, indeed, is infinite variety: a beauty kit, perfume, eau de cologne or a gift card for a permanent wave or a course of facials or a few of those grand new manures with the almost-magic wax that makes the nails grow long and strong. There are ten hundred ways in which to express your love for HER—so do it in at least one!

Old Gardener Says:

Fairy Pink is the name of a new agerum which will be welcomed in almost every garden. First of all its color is the shade of salmon pink that seems to be a favorite of garden makers everywhere. Secondly, it begins to bloom when the plants are only about two inches high and produces a profusion of blooms from that time on throughout the summer. Of course, the flowers must be cut as fast as they fade if the plants are to continue to bloom abundantly throughout the season. The plants remain very small, seldom reaching a height of more than six inches. This dwarf habit makes it an admirable subject to use as an edging and in window boxes.

No jelly needs to be boiled long or than five minutes after sugar is added. Long cooking darkens jelly.

Pleats Over Print

Pleats are having one of their greatest vogue. In this redingote of navy blue silk crepe they are laid in close formation from shoulder to hem to top a blue and white printed silk frock. The crown of the inverted saucer chapeau is rimmed with flowers.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk

Today I'm going to tell you how I made a compass recently in fact, five of them. You can do the same thing if you want to, and have the simple things I used. Taking four steel needles from a package, I placed them against the end of a small, but strong, magnet for a minute or two. This made them magnetic. I tested them, and they would pick up other needles.

Then I stuck a needle in one end of a safety matchstick about two inches long. That made my compass, and all that remained to do was to try it and see if it would work.

Placing the "needle-stick" in a bowl of water, I watched to see what would happen. Slowly it turned around, until one end pointed north, the other south!

The matchstick end pointed north, but the reason was that the north-seeking end of the needle had been stuck into the wood. The purpose of the wood was only to make the needle float. It did float for a time, then sank until the south-seeking end rested on the bottom of the basin, leaving the matchstick end still pointing northward but on an upward slant.

With the rest of the matchsticks and needles, I did the same thing. Always there was the same result, and at length I had four little compasses, all pointing northward but each with one end of the needle resting on the bottom of the basin.

What I wanted was a home-made compass which would really float, so I went to a nearby field

Problem Children Need Training and Protection

BY ANGELO PATRI

A giggling woman acknowledges the murder of her two little children. An hysterical boy kills an old woman for a few silver coins. A bold-faced boy steals another boy's sweater, puts it on, and when charged with the theft, and unable to deny it convincingly, says he can't go out in the cold. He has to have the sweater.

A feeble-minded child is a helpless child—helpless in the clutch of passion, or impulse, or appetite. He is helpless, too, in the hands of clever people and suffers for their sins as well as his own. He is helpless in the difficulties of everyday living; ideas are simple as knowing the difference between his property and yours are too much for him. He is bound to come to grief in an adult world because he is a child and clings helplessly to childish things. We who allow him to go out unfriended to battle his way against odds too heavy for him, must share the guilt of his failures.

Education can and does do much to train children to live in harmony with other people; to work, share, carry responsibility and become real citizens. But education can not supply what Nature refused to give, and society must protect itself and its helpless ones by removing them from a situation in which they are obliged to fail.

I would not brand a child as feeble-minded until I had tried for a reasonable time to teach him. Even intelligence tests are not in themselves sufficient to decide such a question. But experience in trying to teach a child is to be relied on, and when that experience proves a child to be feeble-minded the fact should be recorded, and steps taken to help the child into a place he can hold with some degree of happiness to himself and perfect security to society.

It is cruel to a feeble-minded person to turn him loose to make his way alone because he is doomed to fail. It is a tragic injustice to society to turn him loose to prey upon it, commit crimes, rear children, and forever, while his life lasts, be a grief and a burden upon his family.

In most school systems we have special classes for handicapped children, and these feeble-minded pupils are placed in special classes under the supervision of specially trained teachers. That keeps them fairly happy, and relieves the grades of their presence. But this is only a gesture toward their condition. The time comes when they must leave school, and out they go.

unfit, uncontrolled, to meet disaster in whatever form it happens to be invited by their peculiar weaknesses.

We should do something definite about such children. We should provide after-care for them when they leave school; we should try to place as many of them as possible in occupations they can enjoy; we should put the most helpless ones in institutions and keep them there for life. And, above all, we should keep track of every one of them from birth to death and make it our duty to save them, and ourselves from their helplessness. We have found no cure for feeble-mindedness. All we can offer is training, protection and control. But we should offer that, and make the offer good.

Partnership Angle Given Most Abuse

BY ELY CULBERTSON

It is a sad commentary on human nature that the best feature of contract bridge, the partnership angle, is given the most abuse. To watch thousands of players defend a hand is inevitably to form the impression that they play "every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost." Today's hand might well be titled "how to get bottom scores at duplicate."

North, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
10 9 7
A K 6
Q J 7 4 3

WEST
A 8 3
K Q J 4 2
10 9 6 2

EAST
K Q 5 4 2
Q 10 3
10 9 7
K 5

South's opening bid was, of course, very light, but, considering his third hand position, not to be censured. He passed at his next opportunity but decided to reenter the auction on the third round, feeling that North would realize that this delayed rebid was no more than a paragon's skidish. North did appreciate that South was pretty weak, but felt that four hearts, even doubled, would be cheaper than permitting the opponents to play three spades.

West opened the diamond king. Declarer won, and led a trump to the ace, then tried the club finesse. East covered the queen, the ace, and a club was returned to the pack. Now, in the hope that clubs would break, declarer ruffed a low club. A second trump was led to the king and, when this suit also failed to break, declarer led a fourth club and, instead of ruffing, discarded a losing spade. Meanwhile East completed his echo in spades by playing the deuce on the fourth club. West, in with the club, now made the fatal error of cashing his sure tricks. He laid down the diamond queen and the spade ace, then followed with a low spade. Declarer ruffed East's queen, and ruffed his own last diamond with dummy's remaining trump. Thus, the set was only one trick, and the 100 points earned by East-West did not compensate for the score they could have made had they been permitted to play three spades.

Declarer's technique had not been very good. He should have held up the diamond ace on the first round to insure that he would at least be able to ruff a diamond if his main plan, setting up the club suit, went wrong. As the hand actually was played, however, West missed a splendid opportunity to defeat the contract two tricks when he finally was given the lead with the club 10. He should not have cashed the spade ace, but should have underled it, to throw the lead to East and permit him to draw dummy's last trump. This, of course, would have given the defenders two diamond tricks instead of one and an excellent, instead of underaverage, match point score.

HERE ARE THE 3 THINGS YOU WANT IN A FLOOR VARNISH!

A BEAUTIFUL FINISH

LONG WEAR

QUICK-DRYING

Low Brothers Neptunite Floor Varnish has these three qualities because it's designed for floors. It isn't one of those varnishes claimed to be "good for everything." It gives you a smooth, glistening, beautiful floor that can be walked on in a few hours—the finish will stand up under the hardest kind of wear you can give it. Low Brothers also make other high quality Neptunite varnishes. Each one is designed to do a specific job. "Interior"—high-gloss for woodwork; "Rubbing"—for use when the finish is to be rubbed; "Rubstone"—for a rubbed effect without rubbing; "Spar"—for exterior use, and "Seal"—for chairs, church pews, and other surfaces where unusually hard-drying is required. All Neptunite Varnishes are heat-proof, mar-proof and water-proof. They won't turn white or scratch white. Come in and let us help you get the right varnish for the work you have in mind.

WICHMANN Furniture Company

The Boxwood Barrier By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

THE STORY SO FAR: Judith Goodloe marries self-made Reuben Oliver for his money, only to discover he is bankrupt. Twins are born. Then red-headed Cissy Rogers, who loves Reuben and is out to get him, finds a job for him in a lumber camp managed by Gary Brent—the man Judith loves. Gary insists that Judith get a divorce, telling her that Reuben is going to marry Cissy. Also, he discharges Reuben for disobeying orders. There is a show-down between husband and wife, and their old feud breaks out again.

Chapter 41
"OFF YOUR PEDESTAL!" DID NOT tell the pines because—

"You wanted to cheapen Gary before Galbreath."

"Because," in deadly level tones, "those trees were unsound. Blighted to the heart."

"You expect me to believe that?"

"You must believe either Brent or me. Suit yourself."

"Gary didn't know that." It was a statement, not a question.

"He knew. He saw a chance to cover one of his blunders by a quick cash sale."

"I don't believe you."

"I didn't expect you to."

They glared at each other from masked eyes. Neither tried to penetrate the mask.

"Was the responsibility yours?" Judith asked coldly.

"Strictly speaking, no. But that timber, ready to crumble at the slightest weight, was to have been used for a dormitory—a place where little children go to sleep believing they're safe. Little unfortunates of no great value to society, perhaps, but—"

She made a gesture. She didn't want to hear.

Reuben continued, as though to himself. "My only home for 12 years was an orphan asylum. It would have been a poor return—"

"You preferred to be driven off the only decent job you've held since I married you like,"—it gave her pleasure to hurt him, he wanted to marry Cissy—"like a mad dog!"

He left the fireplace, came towards her slowly. "You allowed Brent to talk to you about me? You believe?"

"Instinctively she got to her feet. "Why shouldn't I believe? Hasn't your every action since I've known you—"

His laughter, sardonic, terrible, might have issued from Satan himself. "You're right! Since the first minute I saw you I've been something less than a man—catering, cringing, fawning! But I'm standing up straight now—free! It was a hard chain to break."

He pondered this for a second, surprised that it was so. Then, triumphantly: "You're off your pedestal! You're standing shoulder to shoulder with me, on the same level—"

"Do you mean to be flattering?" "I mean that from now on I'm my own man and yours. Clem warned me you'd make a poor imitation of nothing of me unless I made an Oliver of you."

Her laughter filled the whole universe with contempt. "Don't attempt the impossible. Fit your pattern to your cloth!"

And instantly a hurricane arose to join the landslide. Before its fury they were swept, willy, nilly, two feathers headed for destruction.

Reuben said: "I'm through slaving to keep things soft for you. Leaving you with nothing to do but play around with Brent, listen to his slander, his questionable love making—"

"Take care!" she jerked out. "Never Come Back!"

He was beyond taking care. "We're getting out of this cabin, now. Getting out of this camp as soon as I work out my debt. We're going back to Warder. I still own a mudhole there."

"Go wallow in it!" Judith flamed, "I'm going to Maryland."

"Following Brent?" he formed the words stiffly through ashen lips. "Oh, no you're not!"

"Oh, yes I am!"

"If you go now," Reuben said, mad beyond all madness, "you need never try to come back."

"I'll never want to!"

"Brent may disappoint you—again."

He crossed the room, picked up his hat, opened the door. "I'm reminding you my children are Oliver—not Goodloes. They're not going to stifle and stagnate behind a boxwood hedge. I'll fight for them to the last ditch."

From her own quivering, seething rage Judith dragged these words, sweetly uttered, venom-laden: "Cissy will feel right at home in Warder."

The door banged behind him. The entire room, the entire world reverberated to its savagery.

Judith stood staring. She said aloud: "I needn't have feared it so!"

Leaving her husband, ending her marriage was—easy!

But she hadn't any time to stand and wonder at it. She must get away quickly before Reuben came back. While Lu Wing fed the children she would pack their clothes. Take all her silver—hollow ware and flat to Pike—Borrow money on its for railroad fare—Telegraph to Gran—Drive down to Casper Street for the babies' woolies—it would be cold at home now—She was going home—going home—Everything else was swallowed up in the miracle of that—Going home—

It was early twilight when Judith at the wheel of Jeff Snow's old car, pulled out of Camp Site Number 2. She felt like a fugitive from justice. If Reuben followed—if he tried to stop her—

Every sound on the road, every trailing car set her pulses jumping.

NORTHERN STATE LEAGUE
Kimberly at Kaukauna.
Green Bay at Clintonville.
Two Rivers at Seymour.
New London at Manitowoc.

THE lid will come off the 1938 edition of the Northern State Baseball league Sunday afternoon with two games in this section: Kimberly at Kaukauna and Two Rivers at Seymour. In the other two games New London will be at Manitowoc and Green Bay will be at Clintonville. All games start at 2:30.

The season's schedule calls for 28 games with 14 in each round. Several will be night contests when the warmer months arrive, and probably will be mid-week dates. Five of the clubs have parks with lights.

Members of the circuit are five of the six teams which showed last season plus three new clubs. The holdovers are Green Bay, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Manitowoc and Two Rivers. The new teams are New London, Clintonville and Seymour.

Will Raise Pennant
All of the home teams tomorrow have arranged for special programs as features of the opening day. Kaukauna probably will have the biggest show for the management will raise a flag on which is emblazoned "State Champions" in commemoration of the Kaw victory at the state tournament last August.

Kaukauna High school band will march to the ball park and then lead the parade of teams and dignitaries to the flag pole where old glory and the pennant will be raised while the band plays the national anthem.

The first ball will be pitched by Mayor Lewis Nelson of Kaukauna and Alderman Ben Neuman of Two Rivers, the league president, will attempt to catch it.

The Kaws will show the same club that won the first round championship last season and battled Green Bay for the league pennant. The only changes have been made in the hurling staff where Dick Weisberger and Al Bauer will be the mainstays and last year's losing pitcher, Fred Kozlowski, the third man. Last year Weisberger tossed for Little Chute and while his hurling usually was good enough, his mates failed to get any runs. Bauer formerly tossed for the Kaws but spent last year at Seymour in the Northern Land of Lakes league. Kozlowski worked for Kimberly on various occasions last year. All are right handers.

Kaukauna will have two catchers, Eddie Helms of Appleton, who will see whether his leg broken last year in football will stand the strain, and Ben Peck, Menasha, who did the receiving last season. Their work behind the log is about even, the nod probably going to the one who has compiled the better batting average.

Egert at First
At first base there'll be Baldy Egert, last year's batting champion, at second it'll be Icky Vondrashek, at short Hammy Powell and at third Eddie Zelinski. They make as good a fielding triumvirate as there is in the circuit.

In the outfield the veteran Joe Vils will cavort in left with Manager Howard "Booze" Bowers in center and Ves Koppel in right. Kimberly's Papermakers will show Kimberly and Little Chute talent with a smattering of outsiders to balance things. Al LaDuke, a right hander, and Art Behr, a southpaw, will make up the hurl-

Lou Ambers Decisions
Vaughn at Louisville

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—Lou Ambers gave Jimmy Vaughn of Cleveland an artistic facing last night and a derby eve crowd a few flashes of his brilliance as world's lightweight champion. Ambers won the decision in a 10 round non-title bout. Both boys weighed 134.

The champion from Herkimer, N. Y., sent the rugged Vaughn down for a count of nine in the third round as he unleashed a flurry of lefts and rights and was ahead all the way, scoring repeatedly with his lightning left.

New London—A squad of tracksters to be reckoned with at approaching district and conference meets is represented by the group of New London Stacymen shown above making warming-up circuit of the New London field prior to daily practice. To date Coach Stacy's thinclads have swamped Neenah in a dual meet and overwhelmed Waupaca and Marion in a triangle contest. Left to right are William Schmidt, New London's ace sophomore miler who promises to sweep up many records before graduation; Robert Wilkinson, dash man; Paul Monroe, dashes and broad jump; Donald Stern and Douglas Hoier, hurdles and high jump; and Francis Meinhardt, long dashes and broad jump. In practices this last week Hoier consistently cleared an actual 5 feet, 11 inches in the high jump and his teammates are doing correspondingly well. The squad invades Kaukauna for a dual meet Monday, May 9.

Berken Scores 20 Points as DePere Trounces Neenah

Rockets Drop Track Contest to Phantoms
76 1-2 to 31 1-2

NEENAH—Racing to victories in the four events in which he was entered, Conrad Berken, West DePere High school's ace athlete, Friday afternoon copped 20 points to pace the Black Phantoms in a 76 1-2 to 31 1-2 win over Neenah High school here.

Berken broke the tape in the century in 104 seconds and dashed to a victory in the furlong in 24 seconds. He heaved the shot 43 feet 9 inches to cop first in that event and hurled the discus 108 feet for another victory.

The Black Phantoms restricted the Rockets to a lone first place while they annexed 11. Neenah copped seven second places and as many thirds, while West DePere took four seconds and as many thirds.

Dodge Wins
VanSistine ran away with second individual honors yesterday, collecting 104 points for the Phantoms, while Dean Sward, Neenah, piled up nine points. Dale Dodge won Neenah's only first, stepping over the 120-yard high hurdles in 16.8 seconds. VanSistine took first in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet 7 inches and shared first place with Olson, West DePere, in the pole vault with a vault of 9 feet 9 inches. He also took second in the discus. Sward annexed three second places, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard high hurdles and high jump.

No exceptional scores were turned in, a brisk wind slowing the runners. Neenah was blanked in only one event, the discus, but the Rockets were restricted to a lone point in each of three other events.

Summary of events:
100-yard dash—C. Berken (W), first; Haertl (N), second; R. Berken (W), third. Time—10.4 seconds.
220-yard dash—C. Berken (W), first; Johnson (W), second; Haertl (N), third. Time—24.2 seconds.

Francis Ouimet May Stage Comeback in 1938 Season

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Francis Ouimet, who is supposed to be only a non-playing captain of the United States Walker cup team, may do a real comeback abroad this summer. Eddie Murphy, Ouimet's golfing partner, says Francis is taking his game more seriously and is red hot right now. . . . Pitcher Luke Hamlin, who has had one big row with Manager Burleigh Grimes, is succeeding Van Mungo as the Dodger cut-up. . . . Mungo has been entirely too tame lately to be true. . . . Looks like Fighting Fox will be the favorite when they give 'em the "scram" sign at Louisville this afternoon.

They now have Lou Gehrig hitting in sixth place—lowest since he joined the Yankees—which means the Yankee iron man is only an accessory after the fact of murderers' row. . . . Old Tom Clarke, Giants' coach, really got it old feeling when the Giants arrived in Cincinnati and they assigned him the same locker he used 20 years ago when he was first string catcher there.

Why is it major league football players seldom make good on the baseball big time? . . . To name a few who tried it and missed: Dixie Howell, "Ace" Parker, Ernie Nevers, Paddy Driscoll and George Halas. . . . Boston baseball writers say young Don Roos at third base is the spark plug of the Detroit Tigers. . . . Ward Cuff, former Marquette halfback who gallops for the New York pro Giants in the fall, will be a popper any day now.

Note to Ted Carpenter, Marquette university: Send some more of those items starting with the letter "S". . . . Charlie Grimm of the Cubs says Lloyd Waner of the Pirates takes the most accurate cut at a ball of any batter he ever saw. . . . Dizzy Dean and Irv Kupcinet, two of the principals in last year's battle of the principals in last year's battle and made up. . . . Freddie Apostoli, crack San Francisco mid-dleweight, will be out of the ring for three months because of that appendix operation.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Pete Appleton, Senators—Single in winning run in 13th inning to beat White Sox, 3-2, after pitching well in relief role.

Johnny McCarthy and Hank Leiber, Giants—Each hit fifth home run of season to account for five tallies in 11-7 triumph over Pirates.

Leo Nonnenkamp, Red Sox—As substitute made two hits, driving in one against Browns, had nine outfield chances with one error and figured in double play.

Enos Slaughter, Cardinals—Tripled in ninth to bring in Jimmy Brown with run that beat Phillies, 4-3.

Joe Marty, Cubs—Drove in three runs in 13-9 victory over Bees.

Johnny Allen and Ken Keltner, Indians—Allen pitched nine-hit ball and fanned five to beat Athletics, 4-1, as Keltner's homer with one on completed winning rally.

Frank McCormick, Reds—Clouted triple, double and single, sending in two runs against Dodgers.

Rudy York Trying Every Berth but That of Bat Boy

New York—(AP)—Where to play Rudolph Preston York is one of the biggest problems confronting the Detroit Tigers' energetic pilot, Mickey Cochrane.

Black Mike, until last year's injury one of baseball's greatest catchers, must decide whether his successor will be the powerful, slugging Cherokee or the weaker hitting George (Birdie) Tebbetts.

Sources close to Cochrane, who has experimented for two seasons on York, says he has all but given up on the big fellow as an outfielder—Rudy's latest assignment—and that only the catching position remains a possibility.

Some place has to be found for York. He's too much dynamite with a bat to go to waste. But he has his troubles defensively. Thus his story—tried at first base, third base, catching, outfield, and catching again.

York, pulled in after two games in the outfield, was booked to catch against the New York Yankees today, mainly because Tebbetts was under suspension for swinging fists with Ben Chapman in Boston Thursday.

Jimmy Tabor Has .470 Average to Lead American Association

Chicago—(AP)—Jimmy Tabor, young Minneapolis third baseman, continued to monopolize honors in the American association batting race this week.

Semi-official averages which included games of Wednesday, rain washing out Thursday's games, disclosed the former Little Rock slugger not only boosted his average seven points to .470, but also took the lead in runs scored with 17, displacing Jack Saltzgaver of Kansas City who had 16.

Meanwhile, he retained first place for most hits with 31 and for total bases with 48. Unable to add to his three base total, he was forced to share leadership in this department with Edwin Joost of Kansas City, and two Toledo players—Ben McCoy and Oscar Eckhardt. Each had three.

Ted Williams of Minneapolis set the home run pace with six and tied with Jud Chisholm of Kansas City for runs batted in with 19.

Jennings Poindecker and Leroy Parmelee, both of Minneapolis, and Don French of Indianapolis headed the pitching brigade with three victories apiece against no defeats.

Fighting Fox Is Favored to Win Louisville Derby

Bull Lea Strongest Contender in Annual Track Classic

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Memories of one of America's greatest race horses lingered over Churchill Downs as 10 hand-picked three-year olds prepared to test speed and stamina in the sixty-fourth running of the $50,000 Kentucky derby late this afternoon.

Derby day broke slightly cloudy and cool and with no indication of rain. The track remained fast.

Fighting Fox, flashy bay from the Belair stud of William Woodward, New York banker, was the favorite at gradually receding odds to match the 1930 performance of the great Gallant Fox—the elder son of Sir Gallahad 3rd—Marguerite—before an expected crowd of 60,000.

Odds Drop
Odds on the Fox dropped to 2 to 1 with evidence he would go post-ward at quotations as short as 8 to 5.

In the money in each of five starts last year, the Fox has not bowed his proud head in two races this season. Neither has he been put to a severe test.

Only Bull Lea, a product of the Blue Grass farm of Warren Wright's Calumet farm, kept pace with the eastern threat in the pre-race figuring as it narrowed down to a two-horse affair in the experts' opinion. His odds were cut to 5 to 2 and if the hardbouts continue to rally to their own, he may go as low as 2 to 1.

In two races at Keeneland Bull Lea created two track records and whipped Hal Price Headley's Menow in both events. He lowered marks for the mile and a sixteenth to 1:44 and the one and an eighth miles to 1:49 3-5, coming from behind to nip Menow by a head in the latter.

Third Choice
Menow, despite the two adverse decisions, figures to be third choice at 6 to 1. Only a few saw a possibility of the 1937 juvenile champion taking down the winner's share of $10,000.

However, many figured the Headley stud's special would carry him into an eighth mile lead would be sufficient to turn back such other speed demons as Maxwell Howard's Chief, Lawrin from Herbert M. Woolf's Woolford farm, and the stretch running Dauber from William Dupont, Jr.'s Foxcatcher farm.

Of the others, only Myron Selznick's Can't Wait, smallest horse in the smallest overnight field since 1922, was given any chance. Although second to the Fox in the Wood memorial, he was rated no better than 15 to 1.

Fast Track
Prospects of a fast track prompted many experts to predict a track and derby record with such speedsters as Menow, Lawrin and the Chief to carry along the early pace.

Menow established the world record for six and a half-furlongs down a straightaway in winning the Belmont futurity last year. He apparently has lost none of that speed. The Chief and Lawrin, which will be running without heavy hand plates for the first time this spring, were only noses apart in track record-equaling time of 1:35 4-5 for a mile in the trial stakes last Tuesday.

Twenty Grand established the derby record of 2:01 4-5 in 1931 and War Admiral ran the second fastest mile and a quarter last year, when he was clocked in 2:03 1-5.

New York—(AP)—Trading forces shifted their affections to aircrafts in today's stock market and cashed profits on the recently climbing utilities.

The aviation group, apparently responding to another revival of hopes for orders for planes would continue to mount, pushed up fractions to a point or more along with an assortment of specialties.

Overnight buying demand for power company stocks, based on signs of a conciliatory move by the administration toward these concerns, soon lost its force and most leaders backed away.

Activity was well ahead of many past Saturdays and transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

On the advancing side the greater part of the brief session were Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Glenn L. Martin, Wright Aeronautical, Curtiss-Wright, "A," Cessna, American Tobacco, "B," Public Service of N. Y., American Can, Loew's and Allied Chemical.

Holding to a slim range either way were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central Motors, Chrysler, Kennecott, North American, Consolidated Edison and Electric Power and Light.

Brisk Buying Buys New York Curb Market

New York—(AP)—Brisk buying lifted curb market stocks fractions to two points or more today, although a handful of utilities encountered profit taking and showed minor losses near the final hour.

Newmont Mining, ahead around 2 points, led the mining group into higher ground while Sherwin Williams and Pittsburgh Plate Glass, each up about a point, paced industrial shares. Gainers of fractions to a point or more included Pan American Airways, Laguardia Hudson Power, Niles Bement Pond and American Cyanamid "B".

Lagging for losses up to 1 point were Northern States Power "A", American Gas and Electric, Arkansas Natural Gas "A" and Electric Bond and Share.

Bonds Continue to Go Forward at New York

New York—(AP)—Bonds pushed for further gains today under momentum of the market's recent strong recovery from the early spring sell-off.

U. S. treasury issues, hesitant yesterday on hints the treasury may resume its large open-market borrowings later in the year, perked up with the rest of the list.

Foreign loans mostly held to a narrow course.

Nash Winter Air-Conditioning Makes Hit With Driving Public

Classified as the greatest advance in motoring comfort in years, the winter air-conditioning system on the new Nash will be doubly welcome this summer when Nash owners encounter cold, rainy weather which formerly meant either putting up with damp drafts or closing the car windows and stifling.

There is no doubt but what the Nash winter air-conditioned cars proved their worth during the past season. The big, twin-ignition Nash motors, of course, have always been able to "take it" during the worst of conditions. The significant fact credited to Nash, however, is that owners of the air conditioned models drove all winter in comfort without the dangers of stale air, chills, frosted windows and uneven temperatures throughout the car.

As N. E. Wahlberg, vice president of engineering, Nash Motors, said, "I remember when we had our system completed. It was a February day, with temperatures just above zero. The blasts of Lake Michigan chilled one's bones to the marrow. Five of us drove to northern Wisconsin in the face of a very heavy wind. It was an unanny experience—and a highly gratifying one."

Actually, it was like sitting at home, except that the air was fresher and had a "clean feel." Tobacco smoke literally dissolved before our eyes. In a short time, every occupant of the car removed his overcoat. The difference in temperatures between the front and rear compartments was never more than five degrees, even though the weather outside was bitter cold. When we came to a complete stop and opened the windows, we expected immediately to be frozen out. On the contrary, there was a rush of air outward through the windows. No change in temperature was recorded inside the car for several seconds.

The Nash system of conditioned air, as Mr. Wahlberg explained, is not designed to cool the air during summer. It does, however, provide the Nash owner with complete control of car interior comfort once weather conditions call for clean, filtered, air warmed to the right temperature.

This, plus the other features that make Nash an outstanding car for 1938, merits an immediate investigation at Auto Sales Co., 124 E. Washington street.

To Feature Old Time Dances on Sunday as Well as Thursday

BULLETIN
Cinderella's old time dance next Thursday, May 12, will bring together two outstanding bands in a "battle of music" for the state championship crown of old time time musical organizations. Both Saxie Siedel and Rube's Westerners will be on hand at Cinderella next Thursday to participate in what will be a fight to the finish.

Announcing a new schedule of Sunday night old time dances in addition to the regular famous Thursday night old time affairs, Charles Maloney, manager of Cinderella Ballroom, brings good news to the crowds who find real pleasure in visiting this popular, conveniently located ballroom.

Tomorrow night, Sunday, May 8, opens the summer dancing season at Cinderella with an old time dance and the Dodo Rachman orchestra, noted for its broadcasts on KFIZ. As an additional attraction, Mr. Maloney has arranged for free Charlie McCarthy dolls to be given to Cinderella patrons. These dolls have been officially approved by Edgar Bergen himself, and, interestingly enough, Cinderella patrons will receive their dolls on the same night following Charlie McCarthy's weekly radio appearance.

The regular Thursday night old time dances will be continued at Cinderella as usual, Mr. Maloney states. This coming Thursday, May 12, will feature Saxie Siedel.

On Decoration Day, Monday May 30, Cinderella will bring Frank Ekenbush and his enlarged orchestra to provide music for the dancers. All in all, it looks like a real reason for Cinderella patrons.

ing. Let Reuben come! Let a million Reubens come! She was going home!

Breaking up the mean little home in Casper Street should have been a delight, but after she had put the twins to bed in the tiny sloperoofted back bedroom, Judith was shocked to feel a dull sort of pain coming alive within her.

Everything was just the same. The low smothering ceilings. Wall paper ugly and depressing. The old bath tub was just as streaked, leaky, hopeless and yet the small, cluttered place was oddly home-like and filled with ghosts. Ghosts who were at once happy and sadly reproachful. "This was home—your deserted it."

Old memories came straggling back. Their arrival here. The basket of food with the red checked apples on top. The way they had laughed, sworn, cried almost, trying to lay Cissy's rug—

Haunted By Ghosts
Determinedly she sent her thoughts ahead. Going home—Not a word to Gran of the real state of affairs between her and Reuben—not until delay was no longer possible—Not a word about Gary—

Gary! His name started a tumult—not entirely pure bliss to-night—tinged by doubt and perplexity. Reuben did not like easily. "A lie or a mistake, a lie or a mistake," she thought, "a lie or a mistake." The question swung like pendulum against her brain. Through all the years she had seen Gary without a flaw. Why was her faith wavering now?

"It isn't wavering," she assured herself fiercely. "It isn't."

It couldn't be. She had to believe in Gary now as she believed in God. He was all she had left in a world gone suddenly awry. Yesterday, a few hours ago, she had security, home, husband, children—Sensibly she reminded herself that she still had the children and as much security as she had yesterday.

Judith made hasty arrangements about the furniture with Mrs. Kraus. Then she tried to get some sleep. She closed her eyes but could not shut out a vision of Reuben—rumpled hair, robe tied haphazardly about him—frightened

Large Crowd Attends Aid Society Meeting

Leeman—The meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church Wednesday afternoon at the Oscar Nelson home was attended by a large crowd. The afternoon spent socially. Hymns were sung and devotional services were conducted by the members. The regular business session was held, followed by supper. The next meeting of the society will be held May 18 at the Malcolm Leeman home. Mrs. Flora Leeman and Mrs. Edna Leeman will entertain.

Out-of-town visitors attending the meeting Wednesday afternoon were Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. Louis Stedje, Mrs. Ward Southard and son, Donald of New London and Mrs. Ray Fields of Appleton.

Pupils of the Leeman school who have had a perfect record of attendance for April are Kathryn Allen, Henry Svetnicka, Janet Schroeder, Leon Schinke, Eunice Larsen and Shirley Boody. Mrs. Alva Felsner is teacher.

Erma Gunderson, teacher at Pleasant Hill school, the following pupils had perfect attendance for April: Nora Wilkinson and Kathryn Wilkinson.

Hostetter Takes Job As Lime Supervisor

Chilton—Fred Hostetter of Hilbert is taking over John Laughrin's duties as lime supervisor, at the request of the county agricultural committee. At the last election Mr. Laughrin was elected assessor of the town of Rantoul, and he feels that for the next two or three months, as several new duties have been added to the work of the assessor. In the meantime Mr. Hostetter will carry on the work of soliciting orders for lime.

There has been a marked increase in the use of lime during the entire spring period, with the result that the lime crusher has been running at full capacity for the last several months.

The Agricultural Committee, composed of Supervisors O. H. Leverenz, William Koch and Theodore Kersten, is trying to keep the lime project running at full capacity.
